She Met the Gloul.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

(Copyright, 1928.)

IN his new book Trotzky says Imperialists of every nation will force a war on Russia because capitalist nations feel they must crush Soviet Russia.

THEY don't feel that way. Big Imperialism is really "big business." Big business, engaged in developing industry and making money, knows that war doesn't pay, and doesn't want any war with Russia, especially. Fighting Russia is like fighting a feather bed. The deeper you sink, the more you choke.

IMPERIALISTIC big business will sit quietly and watch Russian theorists fight each other—as when they threw out Trotzky.

COOLIDGE warned Hoover against overwork, urging him to watch his health. The writer warns Mr. Hoover against fast eating.

As a skillful engineer he would not allow any subordinate to treat a machine as he, Mr. Hoover, treats his own body.

His mind is working constantly. He eats absent-mindedly, in a hurry, never ceasing concentrated mental work.

IN short, he lives as the late E. H. Harriman used to live. And only years of active outdoor life have saved him. When Harriman went to see the German doctors, they said if he had eaten slowly, instead of eating his luncheon on his desk while he worked, and especially if he had taken light beer with his meals, to relax, he would have lived many years longer.

HERBERT HOOVER won't take light beer. Perhaps the German doctors were wrong about that, anyhow. But he will live longer, if he can be persuaded to eat more slowly and stop concentrated thinking, at least during meals.

JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER, JR., most generously, has given $2,000,000 for students' buildings in Paris, in the new "University City," built on the site of the old Paris wall.

IN the days when Abelard lectured at the Paris University, eager students climbed at night to tall steeples and there, away from street shadows, read their books by moonlight.

They heard lectures before daybreak in ice cold stone rooms, their half-frozen fingers writing painfully.

Education is made easier.

MISS KATHERINE LOCKE, of Youngstown, O., traveled miles and miles over the sands of Sahara thinking the sun would bring back her voice that she lost. IT DID.

She visited the Gloul of Marakesh, if you know who he is, in a dwelling 3,000 years old in the Atlas Mountains. The Gloul probably knows as little about us as we know about him.

MORE interesting to many Americans, Miss Locke saw at Timbuktu, pens where American slavers once bought slaves from native chiefs.

Young men, playing jazz music in night clubs now, would be amazed to see those pens where their ancestors once stopped on the way to America. They would bless the slave traders that brought the ancestors here. We never know what is for our good.

AT Pontiac, General Motors authorities meet to discuss development of transportation by trucks, truck production and sale.

DEVELOPMENT of motor trucks means economy and labor-saving for farmers.

It means greater efficiency for every branch of industry, and will free horses from tasks fit only for machines.

MR. SARCOVITCH of the Macedonian Revolutionary committee, commits murders wholesale and ruthlessly. Macedonians dislike Serbians. Sarcovitch locked ten Serbians, including four gendarmes, in a hut, and burned them all alive.

The Serbian government offers a reward of 1,000,000 dinars for the Macedonian bandit.

NOTHING succeeds like success—with horses or men. Felstead won the Derby, the betting 30 to 1 against him. Before the race you could have bought the horse, probably, for $20,000. Now his owner refuses $500,000 offered by an American.

EX-PGH. GIRL FIGHTS FOR ART

Stone Heiresses -:- STRUGGLING FOR ART -:- Derelict Barge

SISTERS

Destitute because the fortune of their father, former Gov. William A. Stone, Pennsylvania, dwindled in the stock markets, Isobel Stone, seeking a musical career, and her sister, Mrs. Peggy O'Neil, sculptress, have taken a rent-free, derelict barge in Sherman Creek, near 41 Dyckman street, New York City, in which to live.

WORK

They have had to work, says Isobel, after years of ignorance as to what work meant and they had thought money grew on trees. Judge Stephen Stone, Pittsburgh attorney, is a half-brother of the girls and intimates that the family would prefer the girls to give up their art careers.

JUVENILE COURT AUDIT CHARGES LAX SYSTEM

The present system of Juvenile Court is said to be unsatisfactory. As the result, County Controller Robert G. Woodside has opened a new set of records so that the department accounts may be kept in a more businesslike manner.

An audit of Juvenile Court completed today by Ernst & Ernst, accountants, and submitted to Controller Woodside, showed that court orders against parents and guardians for maintenance of wards, amounting to $136,177.57 for 1927, have not been collected. Last year the court ordered to be paid to the county for support of wards, $156,544.59. So far the audit shows that only $20,367.02 has been collected.

The report discloses the fact that the records of the amounts to be collected in accordance with court orders were not accurately kept and that no serious effort to collect the amounts due had been made prior to the time the present controller took office. Miss Grace L. Stokes is chief probation officer of Juvenile Court.

The following is the auditors' report:

RECEIPTS.

Collections from parents and guardians	$ 31,816.42
Refunds of amounts erroneously paid for maintenance	122.40
Amount received from sale of articles	68.02
Interest credited on daily balances	53.80
Total receipts	$ 32,060.64

DISBURSEMENTS.

Payments to institutions for maintenance of juveniles	$422,358.47
Payment to individuals for maintenance of juveniles	31,253.96
Salaries and expenses of probation officers	126,835.71
Food, etc.	5,569.65
Medical expenses	4,467.50
Other expenses	17,273.47
Total disbursements	$607,758.76

Shenango Dam to Convert Swamp To Big Lake

DID you know that Pymatuning Swamp, the great impenetrable morass in Crawford county, about 100 miles from Pittsburgh, is to be turned into a lake larger than Chautauqua by damming the Shenango River, and that a large part of the 25 square miles of land that is to be submerged has already been acquired for the purpose?

This mighty project and the benefits that are expected to flow from it will be set forth in The Sunday Sun-Telegraph in a page of articles and illustrations devoted to Greenville, which will be one of the principal beneficiaries.

Mob Tears Shirt Off Raider

Prohibition agents raiding the confectionery store in the rear of 500 Talbot avenue, Braddock, yesterday, were attacked by a crowd and one agent had his shirt torn off. A riot call sent to prohibition headquarters was answered by a squad of agents armed with riot guns.

The agents, who reported finding a half pint of liquor, arrested Albert and William Franko, 22 and 24, respectively, and later their brother, Joseph Franko, 30, special policeman in a Braddock mill. F. M. Franko, 55, father of the three prisoners, disappeared during the raid, but later returned and furnished bail for himself and his sons.

Prohibition agents today reported raiding the second "wildcat" brewery within three days, when they descended, late yesterday, upon a two-story brick garage, rear of 3140 McClure avenue, Woods Run. A truck in the place was seized. 1,500 gallons of beer mash were reported destroyed, together with 16 galvanized vats, eight of which were of 1,500-gallon capacity. Thirteen barrels of beer also were dumped, agents said. The destroyed equipment is valued at $5,000. Three men, residing in that district, were arrested, the agents said.

The second big raid of the day was the confiscation of a 300-gallon still, in operation; 40 barrels of mash, and a large quantity of moonshine in a shack, in a secluded spot of West Deer township. Two men were arrested.

The Federal officers made another of their almost daily visits to Munhall, Braddock and Homestead, and visited saloons, stores and residences, where illicit liquor was found, they averred.

Score Die of Heat

International News Service.

CHICAGO, July 20.—Seven persons were dead today as a result of the freakish weather that has played havoc in Chicago and environs during the last 24 hours.

Alternating between violent electrical storms and periods of stifling heat, the whimsical elements chalked up an unusual score of casualties.

A woman and a man were killed and several persons were injured by lightning bolts that struck golf courses. Two other men lost their lives in the freakish storms, and three persons succumbed to heat.

Rain of cloudburst proportions drenched the Chicago district during the terrifying period that lightning was striking down its victims. Clogged sewers made canals of the streets. Basements were flooded and frequent traffic tieups occurred.

A 64-mile gale that accompanied the storm unroofed houses and caused thousands of dollars worth of damage.

According to reports from downstate sections and from Northern Indiana, the storm did much damage to corn and other crops.

SCORE DIE IN EAST

NEW YORK, July 20.—Upwards of a score of deaths were reported in the East today as a result of the four-day heat wave.

READY TO GO BACK! MINERS SAY

While mine union officials consider modification of the Jacksonville wage scale for presentation to coal operators of this district, in a renewed attempt to end the strike, which has kept thousands unemployed here for the past 15 months, the miners themselves anxiously await an opportunity to get back on their jobs. This was revealed yesterday in a visit to the Castle Shannon, Mollenauer and Broughton districts.

Living in flimsy wooden shacks following their eviction last winter, many of these hardy coal diggers interviewed yesterday expressed a willingness to accept a cut in wages and go back to work, but just how many are of this opinion will not be known until after a referendum has been taken on the district policy to be formed next week.

MEETING MONDAY

The policy committee of District No. 5, United Mine Workers of America, meets Monday to draw up a new scale upon which negotiations with operators in this district will be made. The results of this conference of union officials and members of the scale committee will be laid before the miners immediately afterward by referendum vote. The scale, as well as other important matters pertaining to the proposed negotiations will be voted upon.

What probably will be the biggest issue is the matter of separate agreements by districts. Many miners in Pittsburgh object to these separate agreements, pointing out they will be meaningless insofar as the solving of their troubles is concerned. As long as coal can be produced in some other district by separate agreement with the miners, this and other sections might just as well continue their strike indefinitely, they declare. Nationalization of mines is their cry—they want a national agreement which will put all miners on an equal basis and permit a nationwide cessation of labor activities in the event of disagreement between miners and operators.

The question of separate agreements apparently is the only problem which will meet with much opposition, but this very likely will be smoothed over for the time being at least by temporary separate agreements.

Now that their long winning streak is snapped the thing up permost on the minds of the Pirates today was a determination to start another. The Dodgers, as they opened a series here yesterday, spoiled the tenth victory for the Buccos through the clever twirling of Doug McWeeny.

Fred Fussell was just about as clever as McWeeny, only one of the Dodger tallies being unfurnished. The Pirates left a whole dozen stranded on the basepaths, McWeeny being a puzzle with runners on the bags. The Buccos sighed for some of the 21 hits they scattered around the park on the previous afternoon.

Remy Kremer and Jess Petty will fight it out on Fogarty Knoll this afternoon. The two clubs will stage a doubleheader tomorrow, the twin bill to end the home stay of the Buccos. Another doubleheader is on the two clubs' card for Sunday in Brooklyn.

GREENSBORO BOY SAVES BROTHER FROM RIVER

WAYNESBURG, Pa., July 20.—Acting as a human buoy, by diving under the body, William Gabler, 15, of Greensboro, kept his brother, Ernest, 11, afloat until both were rescued by William Oglethorpe, 15, last night, in the Monongahela River.

VOTE MACHINE EFFICIENT

The several voting machines being used throughout the Pittsburgh district by The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph have prompted a number of questions regarding their adoption and use.

Persons have asked, "Why a voting machine?" To which the attendant replies, "For efficiency, safety, speed and secrecy."

Undoubtedly most persons prefer to express their political beliefs in private, and the secret vote offered by these machines gives this satisfaction. The speed with which voters can do their work is best shown by citing the fact that in one election 1,054 voters balloted on one machine in one day. A voter a minute is the average on these machines without undue pressure.

There is no opportunity for a voter to invalidate his vote on the machines, and spoiled ballots, a frequent trouble in present elections, are unknown when the machines are used. The task and strain of counting and recounting paper ballots, which extends for long hours after the polls close, are done away with in this instance an immediate check being offered the election board as soon as the polls close.

Yesterday a lively interest in the machines was manifest on the six machines in the Pittsburgh district and that in Washington, Pa., demonstrating that the public was "mechanically-minded" regarding the franchise. Smith received 368 votes and Hoover 270 during the day's balloting in Pittsburgh, and in Washington the results showed Hoover 640 and Smith 390 after several days of voting. This gives a grand total in The Sun-Telegraph's straw vote, of 17,977 for Hoover and 19,792 for Smith.

DAUGHTER OF GOV. LIVES ON BARGE

NEW YORK, July 20.—(AP.)—A determination to starve rather than give up her musical career was voiced by Miss Isobel Stone, daughter of a former Governor of Pennsylvania, who with her sister, both former Pittsburghers, recently was found living in poverty on a derelict barge off upper Manhattan.

Miss Stone said that at the death of her father, the late William A. Stone, coal operator and often referred to as "the best governor Pennsylvania ever had," it was found his estate, estimated at three million dollars, had dwindled to practically nothing through stock market speculations.

"We were left in the house," she said, "but we had no food. We had to go to work and we didn't know what work meant, for it had never entered into our lives. We imagined that money grew on trees."

LIVING ON BARGE

Miss Stone took up her abode in the rent-free barge more than a week ago with her younger sister, Mrs. Peggy O'Neil. She is a singer studying for an operatic career while her sister is a sculptor.

She said her sister first got a job in a box factory, while she obtained a place in a chorus, later becoming a singer. She has since appeared in Broadway shows and night clubs and also made her debut in opera. Sickness, however, interfered with her career.

Judge Stephen Stone, half-brother of the girls, at Pittsburgh, said the plight of the two young women was due to their "strong-headedness" in insisting on artistic careers and asserted, "Any time they want to break away from this art business we will be tickled pink and will listen to them."

He said he had sent them money from time to time and that he had been informed by other relatives that they owned New York real estate.

Miss Isobel, however, denied they had received any financial help from relatives other than the life insurance of their brother, Lieut. John Stone, who was killed in France.

"Our relatives sometimes ask us to lunch at the Ritz when they come to New York," she said, "but that's really little help when you're starving and can't pay your rent. And they ask me to sing at society teas, but only once did I get any money for it."

She said there had been no quarrel, but merely "they have no idea of what a struggle it is to make your way in an artistic career. But I wouldn't accept their help now. My father and my brother were fighters. I shall starve sooner than give up my career."

BELIEVES IT LARK

The Stones' old home was on Clifton avenue, North Side. Isobel played here with the San Carlo Opera Company in 1926. Stephen Stone, prominent lawyer and half-brother of the former Governor's daughter, declared today:

"It is impossible for them to be in that financial condition. Isobel was here just last winter and I saw and talked with her. There was nothing said then about desperate straits. She knows she can come to me.

"No ladies with the breeding of those two would end up on a barge—seriously. It is a lark. Isobel always did think she was a prima donna—and I hope she is."

Isobel and Mrs. O'Neil have not lived in Pittsburgh since the World War. They resided on East End avenue prior to going to New York.

CALLES PUSHED FOR OBREGON'S TERM

FOR DIVERSION—A MURDER MYSTERY

WAITING A CALL

If you want to know how members of the police force at North Side's station amuse themselves while waiting for a call—say a murder, a fire, a robbery, or some popular crime—look upwards! You see (left to right) Jacob Sarver, Harry Myer, P. J. Brennan, Cell Sergeant John Greeney, George Fabrick and Walter Bracken reading advance copies of "The Murder of Roger Ackroyd." On the right Wagonman John Macher is doing likewise, as he sits on the rear step of the auto patrol. If you don't think they like detective stories—ask anyone of them. "The Murder of Roger Ackroyd," complete novel, will be free with Sunday's Sun-Telegraph.

PLAN LAW FOR 6-YEAR PERIOD IN OFFICE

International News Service.

MEXICO CITY, July 20.—While the body of the late President-elect Gen. Alvaro Obregon rapidly neared its last resting place in the General's home state of Sonora, all Mexico today began a nine-day period of mourning to honor the memory of the departed leader.

The government has lifted the veil of censorship imposed a few hours after Gen. Obregon was assassinated. The extraordinary session of Congress, set originally for today, has been postponed until July 30.

The purpose of this session had originally been to take up reform laws backed by the Obregonists, but it is now believed that at the session the Obregonists will attempt to push through legislation which will permit President Calles to remain in office for two years more.

These backers of the late leader plan to rush through a transitory

HIT RACING TO RIOT

Responding to a riot call at Grand and Woods Run avenues last night, Patrolmen John W. Greeney and Albert E. Geis, attached to the North Side Police Station, suffered cuts and bruises when their motorcycle collided with an automobile at Columbus and Beaver avenues. The injured patrolmen were treated at the Presbyterian Hospital and later taken to their homes.

The riot call resulted when a free-for-all fight occurred at a ball field in Woods Run avenue. The combatants escaped before the police arrived. Mrs. Josephine Hennault, 22, of 908 Reiss street, driver of the automobile, police say, was turning her car into Columbus avenue when the crash occurred.

CAR HITS AUTO

A Pittsburgh Railways Company work car struck an automobile at the Lennox avenue crossing in Ardmore boulevard, Forest Hills, last night, injuring four persons, two seriously. The machine was carried 100 feet down the tracks and thrown against a pole. Borough police arrested the motorman. The injured are George Reiner, 40, driver; Kenneth Reiner, 4, a son, and Margaret Kondash, 5, all of 1564 Electric avenue, West Pittsburgh, and William Vargo, 10, of 1544 Oak street, North Braddock. All were removed to the Columbia Hospital, where it was said the girl and Reiner boy were hurt seriously.

EMPLOYE GONE, SO IS $150

T. Anthony, proprietor of the William Penn restaurant, 6265 Frankstown avenue, reported to police that $150 had been stolen from an unlocked safe in the restaurant early today. Anthony said a dishwasher, whom he knew only as "George," was missing when he went to the restaurant at 6 o'clock this morning.

NEW ORLEANS GAMBLING PUT UP TO POLICE CHIEF

NEW ORLEANS, La., July 20.—(AP.)—The Association of Commerce adopted resolutions yesterday demanding that gambling in New Orleans be suppressed within 10 days or that Thomas A. Healy, superintendent of police, be charged with incompetency.

Supt. Healy replied that he would do as the commission council ordered him.

"If I get the power to shut up every chartered club in this city where gambling is going on, I'll shut them up," Healy added.

OFFICER DOWN, KILLS FOE

YOUNGSTOWN, O., July 20.—Lying flat on his back and with his nose broken, Earl Hoffman, cadet patrolman, yesterday shot and killed Henry Smith, 34, to save his own life. The fatal quarrel started when the officer accosted a 14-year-old girl on the street and inquired about her mother, who was with Smith when the shooting occurred.

article to the amendment passed last year, providing for a six-year term for President. The amendment as drawn up, contains no date of taking effect. According to the plans of the Obregonists, the transitory clause will meet the date as November 30, and thus make the amendment apply to Presiden Calles.

Gen. Antonio Rioz Zertuche, chief of Mexico City police, issued a statement last night in which he charged Catholic clergy with "responsibility for the crime."

He asserted that investigators already had procured evidence which would involve several members of the clergy. He said that he would soon make their names public as the "intellectual authors" of the assassination and would reveal the nature of the evidence against them.

A wide search still is being made for further suspects. There have been many arrests. Twenty of those arrested were nuns, it is reported.

toll mounted to eight within the last 24 hours. Three deaths were reported from Connecticut where cooling breezes were believed to have broken the hot spell. Washington reported five prostrations and the prospect of showers.

Forecasters here foresaw rain for last night, but it failed to come and today dawned humid and hot. The temperature remained in the eighties all night and began climbing again with the sun.

City pavements were steaming and suffering was intense in the more congested districts where the breeze could not penetrate because of the tall buildings. Parks were crowded during the night with persons who could not sleep in their homes because of the heat.

At least one big industrial concern, the New York Central Railroad, had mercy on its employes yesterday and gave them the afternoon off.

5 KILLED IN STORM

OMAHA, Neb., July 20.—(INS.)—Five lives were lost in a terrific rain and electrical storm which struck this section during the night.

The dead are:

D. D. Tucker, 44; George Wilson, 43; Jesse Davis, 22, and John Butts, 23, all of Stanberry, Mo., and Leroy McCardle, 27, Elkhorn, Neb.

The four Stanberry men, Wabash Railroad trainmen, were killed when the freight train they manned crashed through a trestle near Mineola, Iowa.

McCardle was killed by lightning.

It's Humidity Not Heat Makes You Sweat

High humidity instead of high temperature gave a torrid tinge to sweltering Pittsburgh today. A cloudy condition prevented the city getting the full force of the sun and the local forecaster did not expect the mercury to go above 85, if that high, 15 degrees removed from the 100-degree record established in 1878.

Heavy rain fell to the west and north of Pittsburgh last night. Freeport reported 2.44 inches; Natrona 1.30 inches, and Beaver Falls, 1.34 inches. The Beaver River rose 4½ feet, indicating heavy rain in the vicinity of New Castle.

MOTHER'S 2ND MATE LOSES TO CHILDREN

The $100,000 estate which Mrs. Christina Novy Chapman willed to her husband, cutting off her children by a former marriage, was ordered returned to the five children of the first marriage by Judge Thomas P. Trimble in Orphans Court today.

At the same time in Common Pleas Court a decree was entered canceling all conveyances made by Mrs. Chapman to John J. Chapman. Mrs. Chapman died in March, 1927.

Mrs. Chapman and her former husband, Frank Novy, conducted a saloon and restaurant in East Ohio street, North Side, and Chapman was employed as a bartender. On account of alleged attentions to Mrs. Novy, Chapman was discharged by Novy, the judge says in his decree. Novy died in 1915 and Chapman was again employed as bartender. Together Mrs. Novy and Chapman conducted the business until 1925.

The decree states that Chapman and Mrs. Novy were married in August, 1925, while Chapman was under a court order to pay his wife in Bohemia $7.50 a week. He had obtained a divorce decree in Westmoreland county.

WIFE FIGHTS DIVORCE

Suit was filed to have the divorce decree annulled by the first Mrs. Chapman. After the marriage of Chapman and Mrs. Novy, it is stated in the opinion, Chapman obtained large sums from his wife, who also conveyed to him various properties.

In her will, she bequeathed her jewelry and diamonds to a son, John J. Chapman, Jr., and left the rest of her real estate to Chapman for life and at his death directed it go to the five Novy children and one child by Chapman. Stocks and bonds were willed outright to Chapman.

The court held that the five Novy children were the legal heirs, and ordered Chapman to turn the estate over to them and make an accounting.

AMELIA IN OLD HOME

CHICAGO, July 20. — (AP.) — Amelia Earhart and her companions of the trans-Atlantic plane "Friendship" today began the second round of their four-day reception.

Following an opening welcome day replete with entertainment, Miss Earhart's party today was to be guests at a morning reception in Hyde Park High School, where the now famous aviatrix was graduated in 1915. This afternoon the city's guests were to attend horse races at Lincoln Fields.

An evening parade was planned for tonight in Hyde Park, the district which claims Miss Earhart as its own. Louis Gordon, radio operator on the "Friendship's" flight, and Miss Ann Bruce, are to be married in a public ceremony, at which Miss Earhart is to be maid of honor.

It leaves one wondering.

SEVEN ITALIA SURVIVORS ARE LANDED

ROB WIFE OF $10,000 SAVINGS

Mrs. Mary Hatlasky, wife of a Russellton miner, reported to police today the theft of a hang bag containing bank books with deposits totaling $9,000, over $200 in cash, three gold watches, a diamond and a deed on property in Indiana township for $1,000.

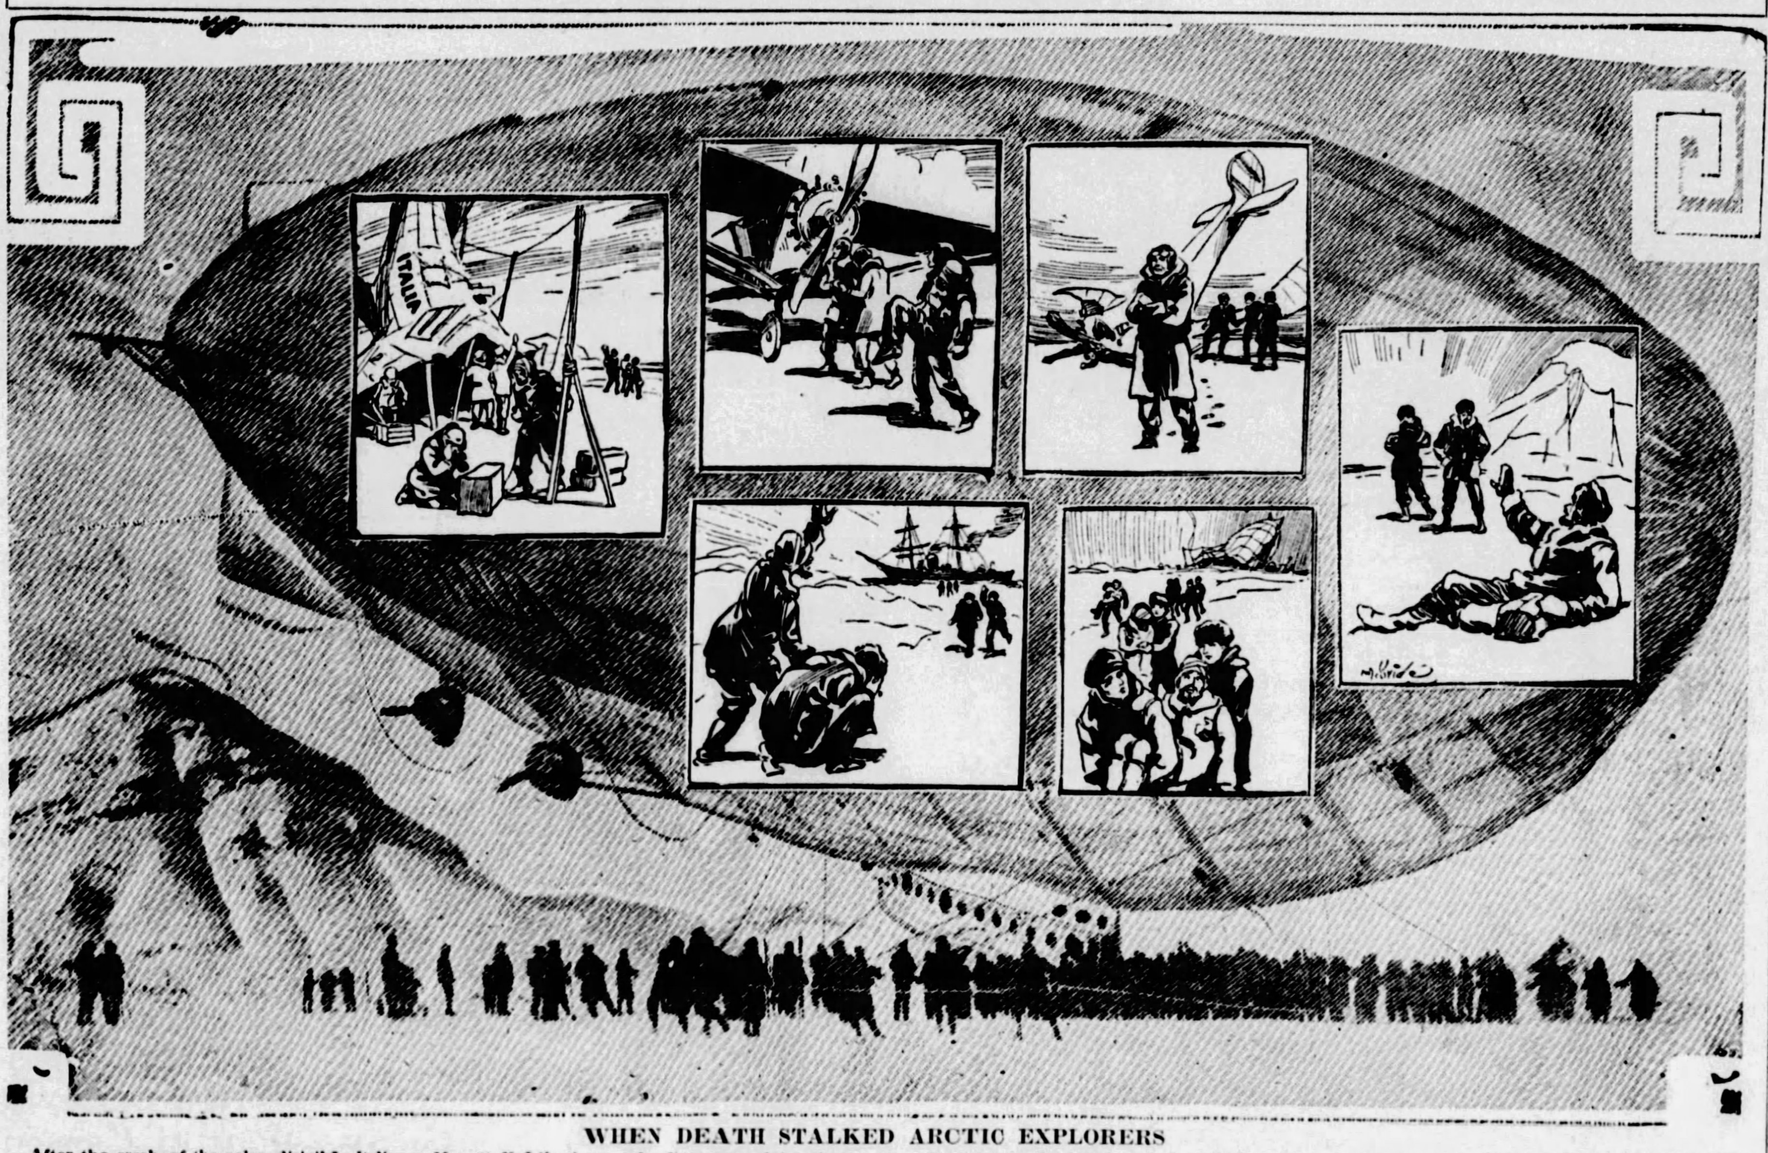
Mrs. Hatlasky says she was en route to Detroit to join her husband, and laid her bag down either on a bench or in the ladies' room of the Pennsylvania sttaion.

She had just befriended a Russian woman by a loan of $20 because she was in need of money for herself, and three children, and believes someone saw her large roll of money and watched for a chance to get it. According to Mrs. Hatlasky the money represents the family savings over a period of 15 years. Her husband went to work in the Ford plant at Detroit a short time ago and she was moving there.

Mrs. Hatlasky was accompanied by her youngest son, Charles, 4. The other boys—John, 15, and Nick, 13—are with their father. The handbag was tan with a blue stripe. There were three bank books. One was a Mellon Bank book with deposits of $4,000, a Union Savings Bank book with $2,000, and a book from the First National Bank for $2,600.

Hysterical and incoherent, it was necessary for the Travelers' Aid and the police to call in an interpreter to get the woman's story. One woman was searched in the ladies' room and let go when she produced a bank book showing that she had drawn a large sum of money today.

Artist Reviews -:- Bleak Arctic's Grasp -:- On Italia's Crew



After the crash of the polar dirigible Italia on May 25, Nobile and his men made their first camp from the wreckage of the airship. From this camp, the Malmgren party of three started to trudge across the ice for land. Nobile, who had an injured leg, was the first rescued, by plane. Capt. Roald Amundsen and four companions started out in another rescue plane, but have not been heard from since. Dr. Finn Malmgren's fate is unknown. He prevailed upon two to go on without him when injuries forced him to halt and companions were the first rescued by the ice-breaker Krassin. The boat then pushed on to rescue the five men who remained at the Nobile camp, some of them so weak they had to be carried aboard.

WHEN DEATH STALKED ARCTIC EXPLORERS

2 CRIPPLED, 2 DEAD IN ICE

KINGS BAY, Spitzbergen, July 20. — (AP.) — All the known survivors of the fatal expedition which set forth almost two months ago for the North Pole in the dirigible Italia, were safe in this harbor today.

Cheers from the base ship Citta di Milano welcomed the Russian ice-breaker Krassin as that sturdy vessel came into port with the seven members of the Italia crew who had been snatched from death in the Arctic.

The men, including Nattale Ceccioni, whose leg was broken in the crash of the Italia on May 25, and Capt. Alberto Mariano, who was picked up with a badly frostbitten leg and in an exhausted condition, were transferred to the Citta di Milano. Gen. Umberto Nobile, leader of the ill-fated expedition, who was rescued by airplane on June 24, awaited them aboard his base ship.

Buried in the polar ice cap they left Vincenzo Pomella, killed in the crash. Dr. Finn Malmgren was left behind a month ago dying in a grave of ice by Capts. Mariano and Zappi when they pushed on in a futile attempt to reach land.

An official communique issued in Rome this morning announcing the arrival of the survivors said that Capt. Mariano's condition was improving, although his frozen right foot would make an operation necessary.

The Oslo newspaper Tidens Tegn said, however, that Capt. Mariano's leg had been amputated last Wednesday.

WINDBER MAN HEADS SOMERSET FIREMEN

BOSWELL, Pa., July 20.—Volunteer firemen of Somerset county, holding a three-day convention here, elected Richard Hill, of Windber, president.

Packet Charon Meets Grief

FERRYBOAT

Thousands of times the ferryboat Charon crossed the Ohio. Once too often! Plying between Bellaire, O., and Benwood, W. Va., the good boat ran on the lock wall (above) at Apple Grove, O., when the stream was at flood stage.

107TH GUNNERS GO TO CAMP

The One Hundred and Seventh Field Artillery Regiment, commanded by Col. Eric Fisher Wood, will leave tonight for the Federal military reservation at Tobyhanna, Pa., for its annual summer tour of field instruction and maneuvers. Two sections will carry the artillerymen to camp. Local units numbering 250 will leave Hunt Armory at 7:45 p. m. daylight savings time, and parade through the principal streets of East Liberty to East Liberty Railroad Station where the men will entrain at 9 o'clock.

The artillerymen will spend the next two weeks under canvas on the reservation. A strenuous training schedule has been mapped out by Col. Wood and National Guard officers this year.

Rated as one of the crack light artillery regiments in the State guard, Col. Wood's outfit will compete with other regiments while in camp in firing, maneuvers and working out intricate artillery problems.

The One Hundred and Seventy-sixth Artillery Regiment will break camp at Tobyhanna tonight and return here tomorrow. The regiment has been in camp the past two weeks.

NEW CASTLE, Pa., July 20.—Property damage amounting to thousands of dollars was done by a veritable cloudburst that hit Lawrence county last night. Cellars in the business district of New Castle were flooded.

Beauty Shop Operators to Satisfy Law

Ethel Johnston (left) and Dee Griffith (right) were among the first to comply with the new city ordinance requiring licenses for all beauty parlors and operators. Corrine Howard, Pennsylvania state deputy, National Hairdressers and Cosmetologists Association, brought about the ordinance's passage. Here, they apply.

FINDING LOEWENSTEIN DEAD REVIVES MYSTERY

NO ANSWER TO QUIZ: ACCIDENT OR SUICIDE?

International News Service.

PARIS, July 20.—French and Belgian authorities were faced today with the problem of ascertaining whether Capt. Alfred Loewenstein, Belgian financier, fell out of his plane accidentally while crossing the English Channel on July 4, or committed suicide.

The finding of the late financier's body by the crew of a Boulogne fishing boat yesterday put an end to all rumors that Loewenstein's disappearance was only a hoax to make people think he was dead.

His body was found floating about 10 miles off Cape Griz Nez and was identified by a wrist watch on which his name was engraved. The body had begun to decompose and was scarcely recognizable.

It was taken to the Boulogne morgue from which it was shipped to Calais after an examination. When picked up it was covered only by underwear, one shoe and silk socks.

Husband's Life Sought

CALLES' DAUGHTER

Mrs. Thomas A. Robinson, daughter of President Calles of Mexico and wife of the American mining engineer, is concerned over the safety of her husband and father. As President, Calles constantly is endangered; Robinson's name was found with several others written on notes in the pocket of the assassin of President-elect Obregon.

WATER PIPED TO SELDOM SEEN

Seldom Seen, an isolated community of 30 or more houses in the hollow back of Mt. Washington, entirely surrounded by Pittsburgh cliffs, woke up this morning to the miracle of running water. For during the night the task of running a 1,500-foot water line had been completed by the city water bureau.

The line was built despite considerable obstacles, such as cliffs, woods and other natural difficulties, as well as constant repletion of a force that quit through desperation when its members tried to haul the pipe over the hills.

Brought into the city just a year ago with the annexation of a portion of lower St. Clair borough, Seldom Seen has been, until today, with few modern improvements. It lacks a roadway, and had been 1,500 feet from the nearest water main. Typhoid threatened the community after recent heavy rains.

The line was completed one day ahead of schedule.

BEER SHIPPED AS LUMBER SEIZED

On the siding at Rand Station, near Hays borough, there stood yesterday a carload of what was called "yellow pine lumber." But the stuff was leaking.

Somebody called the prohibition agents. They discovered this "yellow pine lumber" had been shipped from Pottsville to the Valley Lumber Company, which apparently didn't exist.

So the agents opened the car and found that this yellow pine lumber was concealed in 110 barrels! They sniffed the "lumber" and pronounced it of the best. Then they emptied it along the tracks, although yesterday was one of the hottest days of the year.

As the stuff formed into sad rivulets "lumber" experts agreed it was the first yellow pine they had ever seen that was topped by suds.

DEATH ROLL

Mrs. Margaret Threnhauser.

Mrs. Margaret Threnhauser, who had lived in Carrick for 45 years, died in her home at 2607 Brownsville road, Thursday, after an illness of six months. She was the widow of Peter Threnhauser. Mrs. Threnhauser was a member of St. Wendelin's Roman Catholic Church. She leaves three sons, Edward, William and Elmer Threnhauser; five daughters, Mrs. J. C. Klein, Mrs. Joseph Kapp, Mrs. Joseph Bell, Florence and Elsie Threnhauser; one brother, Frank Hottinger; and one sister, Mrs. J. C. Wallis.

Mrs. Emma F. Hulem.

Mrs. Emma F. Hulem, 69, of Edgewood, died Wednesday at Fontana, Cal., according to word received by relatives here. She spent all her life in Edgewood and went to California four months ago. She leaves her husband, Elijah H. Hulem; one son, George A. Miller, and two daughters, Mrs. George W. Young, of Glenside, Pa., and Mrs. Howard Tomb, of Oakmont.

RADIO PERMIT FOR WMBJ ARGUED

WASHINGTON, July 20.—Pennsylvania radio broadcasting stations, among the 162 in the country, ordered to cease broadcasting August 1, had their inning yesterday before the Federal Radio Commission.

The Rev. John W. Sproul, operator of WMBJ, McKeesport, was told that his application for a license was not in order as the station had relinquished its broadcasting right and the set was dismantled.

Chairman Robinson said religious programs broadcast over WMBJ had "stirred up dissension," but Sproul said public interest in progress warranted licensing of the station.

Charges Wife Left After 29 Years; Asks Divorce

Claiming desertion after 29 years of wedded life, Harry E. Miller, 912 Lincoln avenue, brought suit for divorce yesterday against Mrs. Margaret S. Miller, 1119 Burn street, Wilkinsburg. They were married in 1897 and he claims she deserted him in 1926.

Charles C. Samuels, 432 Penny avenue, McKeesport, sued Mrs. Eleanor G. Samuels, Parkersburg, W. Va., also charging desertion.

Mrs. Clara M. Wampler, 228 Mifflin avenue, Whittaker, charged cruelty in suit against Harry S. Wampler, 614 Fawcett street, McKeesport.

Mrs. Evelyn Horner, 3229 Elsinore square, sued William Horner, 22 Exeter street, charging desertion.

COUNCIL ENTERTAINED BY PLAY ASSOCIATION

The annual reception for city councilmen was held yesterday afternoon by the North Side Playground Association at the Mary J. Cowley Field House, North Side. Councilmen present included James F. Malone, Robert Garland, Daniel Winters, John Herron, W. Y. English and Harry Little. City Clerk Robert Clark also attended. Assisting Mrs. Cowley as hostess were Miss Genevieve Oursler, Mrs. Lillian Stosell, Mrs. Ida McKenzie, Wallace MacMaster and John F. Herriott.

GIRDLERS BEATING MOON

MEARS DUE ON LAND TONIGHT

By JOHN HENRY MEARS,

(Copyright, 1928, by the New York American, Inc.)

ABOARD THE SS. EMPRESS OF RUSSIA, July 20.—They're burning a lot of extra coal on this good ship, and its propellers are making more revolutions per second, probably, than they ever have before.

That's because the crew—from its captain down to its lowliest kitchen mechanic—and all its passengers, as well, are in fever of excitement to speed us along in our race to beat the moon around the world. In addition to helping us making a world's record, in all probability, the Empress of Russia will hang up a record for itself in its trip from Yokohama across the Pacific.

VICTORY SEEMS CERTAIN

There seems not the slightest doubt now that we will establish a new record for the fastest time around the world. We made 454 knots yesterday—fast time for a Pacific ocean liner—and we're due in Vancouver at 8 o'clock tonight.

Our swift little plane—City of New York—is aboard with us and will be in readiness on deck as soon as the ship is warped in to her pier. She will be swung ashore by a derrick, and it won't be long before Charles B. D. Collyer, my pilot, and I are in her cockpit again, winging our way to Seattle. I almost forgot to mention the third member of our party. He is Tailwind, the little Seelingham terrier, which we have carried along with us on our whirlwind trip and who soon is destined to hold the honor of being the first dog to fly around the world. That ought to win Tailwind the blue ribbon in most any dog show.

TO FLY OVER U. S.

Arriving in Seattle, we expect to take off as soon as we can refuel and get a little rest for the last jump of our trip. With favorable weather and good mechanics, we hope to make a non-stop flight from there direct in to New York and our starting point. So be on the lookout for us Sunday or Monday. If we make it, we will have traveled around the world in 23 days. The record up to this time is 28 days.

[John Henry Mears and Charles B. D. Collyer are now steaming eastward across the Pacific on their attempt to establish a new world record by girdling the globe in less than 28 days. They will continue to send the story of their attempt exclusively to The Sun-Telegraph in Pittsburgh.]

Seeks to Curb Feeble Minded Births

HARRISBURG, Pa., July 20.—Sterilization of feeble-minded persons as a state policy in health and welfare was urged upon Gov. Fisher's cabinet yesterday by Mrs. E. Grace McCauley, secretary of welfare in the cabinet. Mrs. McCauley announced she considers the problem one of major importance and is planning to have legislation drafted for the next Legislature to make the plan effective, if it can get the approval of the administration. She cited the constantly increasing population of insane, feeble-minded and epileptics in the overcrowded state institutions as instance of the need for such a practice.

Of second importance only to sterilization, she cited the need for two psychopathic hospitals, in opposite ends of the state.

KILLED BY AUTO BOMB

JR. O. U. A. M. HOLDING OUTING AT WEST VIEW

The annual picnic of the Junior Order United American Mechanics will be held at West View Park Saturday, and thousands of members of the organization from the various lodges throughout the Pittsburgh district are expected to attend. Benjamin J. Senn, who is chairman of the committee, has arranged a program of athletic events and entertainment for men, women and children.

HUSBAND DEAD, HOLD WIFE AND SUITOR

ROCKFORD, Ill., July 20.—(AP.)—A bomb, an electrical current and an automobile combined to dissolve a domestic tangle through the death of the husband, but found the wife and her alleged suitor in jail today, held in connection with the slaying.

Vernon Plager, 32, Rockford radio expert, was the victim of a bomb wired in his automobile so as to explode when he stepped on the starter yesterday. He was thrown into the air, struck an overhead cable and died within 30 minutes.

ACCUSES SUITOR

"Paul Reed did it," he whispered on his death bed.

Reed, 30, a draftsman, surrendered at Oregon, Ill., late last night, maintaining his innocence.

Mrs. Plager, 22, mother of a 5-year-old daughter, also held by police, supported her husband's accusation against Reed.

Last year, police said, Mrs. Plager and Reed ran away to a Southern Illinois city, where they were arrested and returned. In police court they were fined and a reconciliation followed between husband and wife for the sake of their child.

Last Wednesday, the widow told police, Reed again asked her to elope with him.

"I can't live without you," she quoted him as saying. "Every time I see you with your husband it makes me furious."

She said she ordered Reed to leave her and never return.

Reed, questioned for hours early today, attempted to establish an alibi. He told police he had been at the home of his sister, Mrs. C. Garrison, at Mt. Morris, Ill., about 40 miles from here.

DRY? Here's a combination to beat anythirst. Real ginger right from Jamaica—real cane sugar from Cuba—the purest of fruit essences and spices—and sparkling, bubbling water from mountain streams.

That's the Vess Dry recipe from start to finish—just as you'd make it at home, if you had the costly sanitary equipment to mix and blend it. The best of ingredients in a pale sparkling ginger ale that quenches your thirst—refreshes and invigorates. But, because of an entirely new method of production and distribution, the most economical you can buy.

Just Plain Common Sense

Here's why we can sell Vess Dry at such a low price. Not a penny is wasted on fancy labels and gold foil. Nothing is spent for expressing bottles and water to this city—it is bottled right here. Every cent thus saved is used for the purchase of finer ingredients and to make possible a price that is easily affordable by all.

Try Vess Dry Today

So sure are we that you will like Vess Dry that we urge comparison with any other ginger ale, regardless of price. It is to be had at drug, grocery and confectionery stores and soft drink counters. Try it and you'll like it.

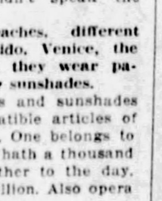
BUGS BAER Says

(Copyright, 1928.)

OUR European fashion expert radio-grams us that the elite are now wearing celluloid bathing suits at Deauville.

Lindbergh flew the Atlantic a year too soon.



It is possible that they are wearing celluloid swimming burlap at Deauville. France is as batty as an old barn at twilight and as a squirrel's nest in October.

Isinglass is a much more durable fabric for swimming.

When a European makes up his mind to jump in the Atlantic, he is still economical.

He knows that salt water spoils clothes, so he leaves his on the beach.

We were at Deauville last season. Everybody on the beach was dressed for an operation.

But Deauville is modest compared to Juan-Le-Pine on the Riviera.

Take the word of a pop-eyed witness, they were nothing. We do not think that the celluloid bathing trousseau will be seen on American shores. It may become popular. But never official.

We didn't go swimming at Juan-Le-Pine, pronounced Wan-La-Pan. We couldn't find nothing to wear.

We piped a mob of swan dancers rushing up the beach behind a windshield, then we left the beach. Being a real reformer, we had to see a thing before we condemned it.

The wife met us on the boardwalk and asked, "Were you down on that terrible beach?"

We told her it was all right because we didn't speak the language.

Different beaches, different manners. At Lido, Venice, the Italian Riviera, they wear pajamas and carry sunshades.

Now, pajamas and sunshades are too incompatible articles of wearing apparel. One belongs to the night which hath a thousand eyes, and the other to the day, which hath a million. Also opera glasses.

We admit that Gertrude Ederle didn't wear a high hat and rubber boots when she swam the Channel. But Gertie was in Europe then, and clothes were rushed to her by the next boat over.

You can wear a celluloid bathing suit at Atlantic City if you desire. But don't smoke.

MORE ENDURING CONSTRUCTION LANG'S AIM

The city Department of Public Works is trying to improve construction work in every way possible "so that roadways and other activities may be more lasting and permanent than has obtained heretofore," Director Edward G. Lang stated in a letter to The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

In the letter, which referred especially to the work of the department after the rainfall of last week had caused considerable damage in the West End sewer basin and Beck's Run, the Director stated that he opposed the use of asphalt blocks, wood block and concrete curbing. The Beck's Run road, which was torn up by the flood, was built of asphalt blocks and had concrete curbs. Director Lang's letter reads:

"Knowing the spirit of fairness and justice that is the policy of your paper, in both its news items and editorials, I read with considerable interest last night, your editorial referring to the West End sewer and Beck's Run roadway.

SEWER MISUSED

"The West End sewer was built for sanitary purposes only, but due to the diverting of storm water into this sewer, which should not and will not be countenanced any longer, this sewer was found inadequate to carry off all requirements after the very heavy rains that have visited this section within the last few months, and this condition will be remedied at once, and all storm water diverted into the run that has heretofore been carried into our sanitary sewer, both by the citizens of the city in that section, and also by the boroughs in the immediate vicinity of the city proper.

"Referring to the Beck's Run roadway, beg to say that our men in the Bureau of Highways and Sewers worked all night on the night of the Fourth of July, when the very heavy cloud burst caused so much wreckage and damage in this section, and with the great amount of debris that was washed down from the ravines intersecting with the Beck's Run road, our forces have been endeavoring, and have succeeded, in opening the road to traffic, notwithstanding the fact that the same was in a very deplorable condition.

NOT BUILT BY CITY

"May I further advise you that the city did not build this road and had no control over its construction, but when this unusually heavy rain fell, some openings in the paving permitted the water to get between the asphalt block and the base, and of course, as you stated, washed the asphalt block away like so many chips. The Bureau of Engineering could not proceed with any reconstruction work until authority was given by Council, which it did at the earliest possible time, but our Bureau of Highways and Sewers were untiring in their efforts to open the roadway and clear away the thousands of tons of debris that covered the roadway that a safe condition may be attained, so that traffic was not hindered, or entirely restricted.

"This department does not favor the construction of pavement similar to Beck's Run road, as we are opposed to the use of asphalt blocks, wood block and concrete curbing.

"We are endeavoring, insofar as possible, to improve on the construction work in the city, so that our roadways and other activities in this department may be more lasting and more permanent than has obtained heretofore.

TRIPS ON SIDEWALK, SEEKS CASH FROM TOWN

Tripping in a depression in a brick sidewalk in Wood street, Tarentum caused injuries which led Mrs. Sarah B. Pratt, of Tarentum to sue that borough for $25,000 damages in Common Pleas Court yesterday. The mishap occured July 25, 1927, and caused injuries to her right ankle and leg.

Colleen Moore Wins Praise From Critics for Portrayal In Her New Film, "Lilac Time"

By REGINA CREWE.

(Copyright, 1928, King Features Syndicate.)

HOLLYWOOD, July 23.

BIGGER and better premieres seem to be the rule in Hollywood. Each outdoes all its predecessors. Most splendid of all to date was that of "Lilac Time," at which the greatest crowd of celebrities ever assembled under one roof almost lifted the rafters with salvos of well-won applause for Colleen Moore, its star. Although the Colleen has long been one of the biggest box office draws in pictures, oddly enough this is her first swanky opening. Conrad Nagel was master of ceremonies, and to make it perfect the Hon. James J. Walker appeared as guest of honor. And appeared promptly, too. The only thing to mar a marvelous evening was the too lengthy prologue. For what with "squeakies" and a little of this and a little of that it was after 9 when the first sequence reached the screen.

As a picture it is an utter triumph for Colleen. It gives her ample opportunity to indulge her genius for comedy. But it is also packed full of dramatic pathos. It proves that Colleen's histrionic range far exceeds any of the vehicles that have as yet been accorded her. And that includes "Lilac Time." For Colleen is finer that the film. As is expected in a George Fitzmaurice production, the pictorial composition is a joy forever. But there is no surfeit of beauty, for the flowery sequences are broken with staccato thrills, or little lyrics of laughter which provide that variety which is the spice of cinematics.

It is distinctly Colleen's show all the way through. But Gary Cooper offers excellent support as an ace of the air, and a youngster named Jack Stone does so well that I don't doubt but what he is right now taking his choice of contracts.

The sound effects could have been better. But the usual alibi is offered. The apparatus arrived late, and there was little time for proper adjustment. However, so far as the picture itself is concerned its "silence is golden," and if there are any movie patrons left who are not already Colleen's fans, they surely will be after "Lilac Time."

"Hard Boiled Rose" will be the next all-star vehicle emanating from the Warner lot. The yarn is even better than the title, and those selected for the various roles are sure of a good break. All the parts are fat. The first to be actually cast in the film is Myrna Loy, the sloe-eyed vamp of the screen, who needs no introduction to the customers.

Pauline Starke has been persuaded to turn blonde to play the heroine in the Technicolor feature, "The Thrall of Leif the Lucky." There will be sound, too. As you remember, House Peters plays Leif, the Viking, and Leroy Mason is his thrall, or slave.

We have with us today, and will have for several months to come, no less an entertainer than "Chick" Sale, the famous "Rube" of vaude and musical comedy. "Chick" has come out to get a load of Hollywood tan and—who can tell?—perhaps a couple of picture engagements before he returns East in the fall. "Chick" has already made some "squeakies" and goes over like a house afire in them.

They tell a story about Andreas de Segurola, former Metropolitan Opera star, who is now in films. Andreas asked what seemed an enormous sum to sing a single song in a recent sound-picture. The producers remonstrated that the work would require only a few moments of his time. "Ah, yes," said the famous singer, "but you must pay a little more to help make up for those years when I studied and earned nothing." And they did. Moreover, the song was one of the big hits of the show. As you will agree when you see "Glorious Betsy."

Another one of those last-minute substitution things puts Dorothy Sebastian in Tiffany's film, "Rainbow," instead of Virginia Valli. Virginia is scheduled for another part in another picture, which will be directed by Reginald Barker.

Edna Murphy will have the lead in three pictures, all of which will be vitaphoned. Edna has had lots of luck since her romantic marriage to Mervyn Leroy, youngest of film directors. And Mervyn has had nothing but horseshoes and four-leaf clovers as his share, too.

YOUNGEST FILM STAR -:- IS "WHEEZER" -:- JUST TWO YEARS OLD

"Wheezer," 2 years old, is on his way to fame and fortune with a five-year picture contract.

The baby is the latest addition to the Our Gang Company, appearing in kid prank comedies.

As an actor he is considered to be the greatest "find" in years by directors of photoplays.

In these poses we have "Wheezer" expressing interest, surprise, happiness and—must we really tell you?

HARMAN IN NEW MUSICAL PROGRAM

Dave Harman, who is playing with his orchestra this week in Sanders, is to present a completely changed program of dance numbers tonight and tomorrow night. Ted Weems and his recording orchestra will return to Sanders Monday.

NEW PLAYERS NEXT WEEK

"In Love With Love," a comedy by Vincent Lawrence, to be presented by the George Sharp Players in the Pitt next week, will have King Calder and Olive Meehan in the leading roles, which they have played elsewhere.

Harry Bannister and Louise Quinn will have the leading roles in "Nothing But the Truth," a comedy in three acts, which the Nixon Players will present in the Nixon Theater next week.

With the completion of the engagement of "The Captive" in the Gayety Saturday night, it is announced improvements will be made to the interior of the theater in preparation for the appearance of other dramatic productions in that house.

EXPRESS WORKERS ON HOMER SMITH TONIGHT

Members of the American Federation of Express Workers will hold their annual outing tonight on the steamer Homer Smith. The boat will leave the moorings at the Water street wharf at 8:30 o'clock. The program for the evening will include dancing and cards. Tomorrow afternoon the West Penn Power Company employes will hold their annual outing on the boat.

RUM SELLER SUSPECT TAKEN AT GUARD CAMP

STROUDSBURG, Pa., July 20.—(AP.)—Benjamin E. Santaro of Old Forge, was arrested yesterday in the United States military reservation at Tobyhanna, charge with violation of the Volstead act. He was held in $1,000 bail for court. With Santaro was Louis Fuzzi, and his nephew. The last two were discharged. A Federal agent said Santaro drove into camp with 108 two-ounce bottles of liquor which he was selling to soldiers.

SHERIFF'S CASE NEARS JURY

KINGWOOD, W. Va., July 20.—(AP.)—The trial of former Sheriff A. R. Williams, charged with feloniously shooting Gordon B. Ramsey, of Philippi, is expected to go to the jury late today.

Prosecuting Attorney E. Vernon Fortney testified for the defense. He had withdrawn as prosecutor before the case was started, basing his action on his long friendship with the defendant.

Fortney said he did not believe the sheriff was insane. He said the sheriff had tried to enlist his aid in tapping telephone wires to listen to conversations of his wife, who he charged was unfaithful.

Doctors were called for expert opinion as to the defendant's sanity. Three said he was insane and two others said he was sane.

DROWNING BOY SLIPS FROM RESCUERS' HANDS

WARREN, Pa., July 20.—(AP.)—Lack of a swimming suit perhaps was responsible for the drowning of James Greenlund, 14, in the Allegheny river here late yesterday. His body slid from the hands of two companions who had responded to his call for help. Earl Hummerich, 15, and Edward Standard, 15, said they had swam furiously to their struggling friend, but could not maintain their grasp. Greenlund was a son of Roy A. Greenlund, a newspaper linotype operator.

Don't fool yourself: Since halitosis never announces itself to the victim, you simply cannot know when you have it.

It makes you unpopular with your own children

Some parents blame everything but halitosis (unpleasant breath) when children are not affectionate. As a matter of fact, halitosis is often the cause.

Don't fool yourself that you are free of it, because it is simply impossible to tell when you have it. It doesn't announce itself.

Eliminate the risk entirely by using Listerine every day, morning and night. And between times, before meeting others.

Being a powerful deodorant, it immediately ends halitosis.

If you have any doubt of its power as a deodorant, rub a little onion on your hand. Then apply Listerine clear. Immediately the odor is gone. Even the odor of fish yields to it.

Don't take chances of offending your friends and business associates when simply by using Listerine, you can put yourself on the polite, agreeable side. Lambert Pharmacal Company, St. Louis, Mo., U. S. A.

Easy To Reduce This New Way

Explains Why Oxygen Melts Fat Away on Any Part of the Body, So That You Can Reduce Just Where You Want to Reduce.

Without Medicines, Diet or Exercise.

Scientists have now proved that the quick, safe way to get rid of fat is to get at it right through the skin. Whether you have a double chin, fat waist, big hips or fat legs or arms, the fat itself lies in flat layers right under the skin. Strenuous exercise melts fat away by bringing oxygen in contact with the fat through the blood and now science has produced an infiltrating oxygen cream, which carries double oxygen right to the fat itself by absorption through the skin.

Like so many other discoveries that have been a blessing to humanity, Viaderma was discovered accidentally by colloidal chemists and physicians working in the laboratory to discover a cream that would keep the skin clean and healthy. They found out to their astonishment that when it was rubbed on a part of the face or body that was too fat, the fat seemed mysteriously to melt away. It took many weeks for them to account for this, and it was finally found out that Viaderma being colloidal is able to penetrate clear down to the fatty tissues, carrying fat-melting oxygen to them just as the blood does when we take strenuous exercise. Viaderma thus reduces in Nature's way, which is the only way approved by physicians who warn you against too strenuous dieting, too hot baths and most of all against dangerous internal remedies.

When rubbed on any part that is too fat, this golden brown cream disappears at once, leaving a clean white foam on the surface. You will get results in from four to six treatments, although if the fat has been there a long time, it may take from 16 to 18 treatments to complete its removal. When this kind of fat begins to go, however, it melts away rapidly.

REMARKABLE RESULTS REPORTED

One woman writes, "You can't know what it means to me. I lost 29 pounds in six weeks." Another says, "Reduced my waist 3 inches and my hips 4 inches with only one jar of Viaderma. Now I can wear the slender silhouette gowns of the season." Another writes, "I was just about the right weight, but my arms were too fat. I used Viaderma only seven times and by actual measurement my upper arms were reduced 2 inches, and you can't imagine what a difference it makes in my looks."

Get a jar today and lose pounds where you want to. At all May's drug stores.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

COMFY

By BERTHA R. M'DONALD

FANNY SPENCER was known for her unselfish devotion to every one in need. She had loved once in her early life, with an intense, all absorbing passion which had left her bleak and desolate when accident robbed her of her "man." Then, after months of mental anguish when she finally regained something of her former poise and balance, she resolved to devote the remainder of her life to making others happy.

She seemed to be so particularly adapted to smoothing out wrinkles, immaginary and otherwise, for lovers, married and unmarried, that she finally acquired the sobriquet of "Comfy" in the town where she lived.

When her nephew, Robert Wingate, wrote to her from Springfield, asking her to come and stay with him for a time, to help him with the solving of some very important and quite personal problems, she sensed instinctively that another romance was on the rocks. Robert had written her from time to time, hinting that he was very much in love, but he had never told her of a climax nor had he mentioned the lady's name.

Aunt Fanny was so sure she was right that she tingled with pleasurable anticipation as she thought of how she would smooth the way to the altar for another pair of "young 'un." Less than 24 hours saw her in Springfield.

"Comfy! You peach!" exclaimed Bob when he met Miss Spencer at the train, "I knew you'd come! I sure need you!"

"Out with it, young man," Aunty Fanny insisted, as soon as they were seated in Bob's room. "What have you and your sweetheart quarreled about?"

"Why—your name's Comfy, not Sherlock," the young man said rather gaspingly. "How did you know we'd quarreled?"

"You've heard about that little bird that whispers, haven't you? Well, he's been buzzing around your Aunt Fan's ear ever since she got your letter. You want me to help you patch things up, don't you, and—"

"I don't want anything of the kind," Bob declared stoutly. "Things are over between that girl and me. I'll not marry anyone who can't or won't trust me, especially when my whole life's an open book. What I want you to do is this: I've built a bungalow and I want it furnished. It's for an investment—you see, and I want it made as attractive as possible. Do it as though it were your own, Aunt Fan, even to giving the idea that its yours. I don't want a soul to know it's mine—understand?"

Wise Aunt Fanny took the money her nephew gave her for furnishings and went about her task without a word to anyone. She was just as positive that the bungalow had been originally intended for Bob's bride as though he had told her so, but she made no comment, smiling to herself as she thought how she was going to love the straightening of this particular tangle.

In the course of her activities she one day met a Miss Gwenneth Rodman, a student of interior decorating. The girl's keen interest in what she expected eventually to adopt as a career intrigued Miss Spencer to the point of asking Miss Rodman to give her some advice about the bungalow.

"Isn't this just too darling!" Miss Rodman enthused, the first time Fanny took her to see it. "It's exactly the kind of a place I'd like for my own. I love it!"

"Suppose then just for the fun of the thing, you play it is your own—plan for the furniture and furnishings exactly as though you expected one day to live here yourself. Certainly you know more about it than I do and that's the main issue. It's attractiveness must sell it."

So Gwen Rodman planned and schemed, bought and fitted and arranged, while Miss Spencer paid the bills. At last the bare little house blossomed into a veritable palace of loveliness, from its taupe and wistaria living room and its apple green bedroom, to its yellow and white kitchen. Every spot was a marvel of taste and convenience. At last it was complete in every detail. Miss Spencer announced that they would see it lighted the following evening and the next day that she would invite public inspection.

On the afternoon of that last day, Miss Spencer was late in arriving at the bungalow. When she finally got there she found Gwen sitting in the cheerful yellow and white kitchen, sobbing among the lovely new pots and pans.

"Highty-tighty!" dear old Comfy exclaimed when she beheld the deluge. "Why the tears? Come—out with it, dear—what's the trouble?"

She dropped down upon the white enameled kitchen stool and took one of the girl's hands in her own.

"Oh—oh!" sobbed the girl. "All my life I've dreamed of fixing up a darling little home of my own, just like this, and now—now to have done it for somebody else—never to live in it myself! Oh, Miss Spencer! I wonder if you've ever loved and quarreled and been miserable and disappointed like I am?"

"Dear child," the kind voice entoned soothingly. "I've loved but I've never quarreled and was never unhappy till death robbed me. You mustn't be either. There's always a way out. The point is to find it. I hope it isn't a question of pride with you or the young man."

"It was—with me but I'd forgive him everything if I could only have him back and be happy again."

"Why not tell him so?"

"Oh—he'd never listen."

"You don't know positively that he wouldn't. Perhaps he's just as miserable as you are. I'll tell you what we'll do. Tonight, after we've seen this place lighted, we'll call in this boy friend of yours. He can't be cad enough to be rude to an old lady like me and perhaps that will break the ice."

Somewhat comforted, Gwen helped to turn on all the soft glowing lights. Afterward they locked the doors and went their several ways toward a bite to eat, promising to meet again at the bungalow in about an hour.

"I've finished your house, Bob," Miss Spencer announced to her nephew over their demi-tasse, "and I want you to go there with me on a tour of inspection tonight."

"We ought to make a nice profit on the deal," Bob said like an enthusiastic young business man.

"You may change your mind about selling after you've seen the place. It certainly is attractive."

A little later, as they were approaching the building, Aunt Fanny pointed proudly to the porch lamp, the flagstone approach and some shrubs she had had put out. Then she handed him the key.

"Go on in," she told him. "I'm going around back to see if the man I had at work in the yard has turned off the water."

The woman who had so faithfully earned the name of Comfy went to the back of the little house and sat down upon the steps, waiting there until she began to be chilled. Then she let herself in through the rear door and slipped stealthily toward the living room. She smiled a smile of great satisfaction when she saw her late co-worker folded close in her nephew's arms and heard her say, "And to think that this was the secret you were keeping from me, Bob! It makes me so ashamed of myself."

"Nonsense, darling," Bob answered, kissing the lobe of Gwen's pink ear. "I should have been more patient. Isn't Comfy a darling? I might have known she'd fix things up. I'll bet she's known from the very first that you were my girl. That's why she asked you to help."

"My own—my very own little house!" sighed Gwen, resting her head contentedly against Bob's shoulder. "After we're married Comfy's going to be our first guest."

CLAIMS BENEFITS WERE WONDERFUL

North Side Elderly Lady Helped Back to Better Health by Famous Ten Herbs

"Ten Herbs has made a wonderful improvement in my health," was the statement of Mrs. Elizabeth Cornman, 902 Mystic street, North Side, Pittsburgh, to the Ten Herbs man, who is at May's Main Store, 529 Liberty avenue, Pittsburgh, where he is daily demonstrating this successful new herbal compound. "I noticed quite an improvement from the first bottle," continued Mrs. Cornman, who is 65 years of age.

MRS. ELIZABETH CORNMAN

"For a number of years, I had suffered with my stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels. Food did not digest properly, and everything I ate caused the formation of gas, which would work up around my heart, bringing on palpitation and shortness of breath. I had been troubled with constipation for years; and my liver was sluggish, causing billiousness, dizzy spells and terrible headaches. At times, blood would rush to my head, and if I tried to lift anything I would have terrible pains across my back. My system was in such a weakened, run-down condition that my nerves became so unstrung that at night I was very restless and could not sleep.

"I read so much about Ten Herbs that I started using your medicine. After taking several bottles, my bowels are regular. I can eat almost anything without having gas, bloating or heart palpitation. My liver and kidneys are working properly. Billiousness, dizzy spells and headaches have disappeared. My complexion has cleared, and I do not have the hot flashes and rushes of blood to my head. I can just feel myself gaining in strength, and friends remark about the big improvement in me. My nerves are stronger. I sleep better, and feel better in every respect. Ten Herbs has helped in so many different ways that I do not hesitate to recommend your medicine to the public."

The Ten Herbs Man is at May's Main Store, 529 Liberty avenue, Pittsburgh, where he is daily meeting the public and explaining the merits of this medicine.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIAL HAPPENINGS

Younger Set Entertains for Margaret Crutchfield, Who Will Be Mid-Summer Bride

JUST when we have decided to become reconciled to just plain travel notes for our social news something happens. Mid-summer weddings among society folks are quite rare, to be sure, but this month there will be a particularly interesting one, you know—that of a popular young Sewickley girl, Margaret Crutchfield, daughter of the James Stapleton Crutchfields, and her fiance, you'll remember, is Andrew Tod Roy, son of the Frank C. Jordans.

And members of the younger set who are still in town are entertaining for Margaret. There is a delightful informality about these entertainments, too, for in the summer formal affairs indoors just don't interest anyone.

Mrs. Hugh Robertson is entertaining today at Webster Hall for Margaret, I hear.

And tonight Mrs. Charles Clarke, of Sewickley, will entertain informally in her home. Lovely Sewickley homes with their gardens are most inviting in the summer time, and of course there are always the popular country clubs for parties. The Pittsburgh Country Club will be the scene of another entertainment and all the members of the bridal party will be guests. The R. B. Woolfolks will be hosts at this event. There will be a dinner and dancing, I suppose, for young people will dance even when the mercury in the thermometer leaps up and up.

MID-SUMMER is just about the only time in the year when wedding dates are not being named. Nearly all the betrothed folks are out of the city, too busy with summer colony society to make marriage plans.

Among the girls whose engagements were recently announced, is Jean Guthrie, daughter of the W. J. Guthries, of Fifth avenue. Her fiance, you'll remember, is Robert G. Fiscus. Jean is now in Atlantic City, I hear, with her family.

EUROPE never fails to attract Pittsburgh society folks, no matter what the season may be. The Samuel Harden Churches will sail for Italy tomorrow, I have been told, on the Conte Biancamano, and will remain there until mid-September. Mrs. Henry Lawrence Jones II, of Wilkes-Barre, their daughter, and Mrs. James Francis Burke, will accompany them. Mr. Burke had intended to join the party, but he has decided to remain here to give his entire attention to the Republican campaign.

THE junior William L. Joneses are sailing for France, and they will go on the Ile de France.

THE marriage of Miss Deborah Cory Thompson, daughter of Mrs. Lois Cory Thompson, dean of women of Grove City College, and Roy Orville Sakemiller, of Cleveland, will be solemnized August 7, at 8:30 o'clock, at the Colonial, Grove City. Mrs. William O. Reeder will be matron of honor and her small daughter, Betty Ann, will be flower girl. Miss Elizabeth Harshaw, Miss Elizabeth Hosick, Miss Florence Breckenridge and Mrs. John Black will be bridesmaids. Ralph Pond, of Cleveland, cousin of the bride, will be best man and the ushers will include Robert Thorne, of Grove City; Hardy LeSeuer and Robert Brydle, of Cleveland, and Alfred Lindsay, of Chicago, cousin of the bride. James H. Thompson, of Cleveland, will give his niece in marriage.

NANCY WALTERS, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. John Walters, of Beaver road, Sewickley, is in Cleveland, where she is the guest of her aunt, Mrs. Charles Wistar.

THE rehearsal for the wedding of Miss Leota May Weeter, of Gross street, and Winfield C. Boyd, of McKee place, which will be solemnized Monday, is to be held tomorrow night and will be followed by a dinner for the bridal party in the home of Miss Clara S. Patterson, in Idlewild street. Miss Florence A. Barnett, of Newcomerstown, O., cousin of Miss Weeter, will be her only attendant.

THE monthly bridge luncheon of the Stanton Heights Golf Club will be held next Wednesday afternoon. Mrs. M. R. Gibson is chairman, with Mrs. H. H. Hunter and Mrs. E. H. Eggleston as vice chairmen.

MISS BETTY HILL, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elgin A. Hill, of McPherson boulevard, who are at their summer home at Camp Terrace, Huntingdon, Pa., has as her guests Miss Naomi Patrick, of Ivy street; Miss Virginia Moore, of McPherson boulevard, and Miss Harriett and Miss Frances Dent, of Forbes street. Miss Mildred Smith, of Washington, D. C., and Miss Mary K. Dent and Miss Virginia DuBarry were guests over the week-end.

MISS EMMA VIRGINIA LIOTTA, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Liotta, of the North Side, and Angelo A. Pusateri, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Pusateri, also of the North Side, will be married next Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock in St. Peter's Catholic Church.

MRS. FRANK GUCHERT, of Homestead, who is at her summer home at Van Buren Point, N. Y., has as her house guests Mrs. Arthur J. Clossin, of Avalon; Mrs. Charles J. Vokach, of Brookline, and Mrs. Edward E. Edwards and her son, Thomas, of Crafton.

HOSPITAL HALF WAY TO GOAL

Of the $6,000,000 which the Allegheny General Hospital needs to build a 15-story hospital in North avenue, $3,000,000 has already been raised among the directors and their friends, H. L. Mason, Jr., vice president of the board, told the general committee at a dinner in Boggs & Buhl's store last night.

This committee of business men was named to co-operate with the directors in completing the financing and to arrange for the public appeal which will be made in October. The committee consists of Chairman Edward G. Lang, Hugh F. McKnight, W. H. Newmeyer, E. C. Nied, L. B. Seefried, R. K. Cochrane, George A. Young, Edward Snodgrass, Jr., W. L. KIWANIS HOUSE GIVEN S. A. AS SUMMER CAMP Headed by William C. Zeigler, president of the Kiwanis Club, and Attorney Joseph Langfitt, Jr., chairman of its committee on underprivileged children, a delegation of that organization participated in the dedicatory exercises at The Salvation Army Fresh Air Camp, West View, yesterday evening. The ceremony consisted in turning over Kiwanis House for the use of the Army in connection with its camp activities. The new building will greatly increase the capacity of the camp, which gives vacations of 10-day periods to underprivileged children and their mothers through the hot summer months.

How I Bleach My Skin White

"The camera is a merciless eye," says Miss Genevieve Barr, noted New York model, "and we girls who have to face it have a method of our own for keeping our skins white and flawless.

"We buy no ready-made preparations, but get three ounces of Orchard White at the drug store and add to this the juice of two lemons. This makes several weeks' supply of a very fine skin bleach which softens, refines and whitens the skin without any harm or irritation. And because you use it while it is still fresh, it is twice as effective as any ready-to-use preparation. I find it a dandy bleach for tan and freckles, too. Every girl who takes up posing in New York sooner or later learns this studio secret. The bleach costs only a few cents to make."

Clean..Dry..Gleaming

Without Tedious Work

Dishes done in half the time with these amazing "beads" of soap

DON'T fret about that pile of dirty dishes.

For here's a way to get them dry and sparkling clean in no time... without hard work.

A way that leaves no soapy film on china... abolishes the dish towel.

It's called Super Suds and it's not a chip... not a powder... but a remarkable new form of soap made in tiny, thin-walled "beads"—so thin they burst into suds the instant they touch water! Dissolve instantly... rinse completely!

Try it at once... you'll never use anything else. It does the work faster and better than anything you've ever known before.

Just phone and ask your grocer to send a box today.

JUVENILES PLAN MILK FUND BENEFIT

For the fifth successive year the youngsters of Pointview street district, in the East End, have planned a benefit for The Sun-Telegraph Milk and Ice Fund. From a very small beginning five years ago in a spirit of fun, these annual affairs have grown in size and scope until they have become neighborhood institutions in which all the adults are as interested as the children. But the work devolves upon the young shoulders. For days these boys and girls (ranging in age from high school down to eight years), have been soliciting both East End and downtown merchants with generous results and it is the hope of the young solicitors that the babies will be more richly helped this year than ever before. The affair will be held at Olivant and Bower streets next Wednesday night. A fish pond is to be a new attraction and there will be the usual reliable standbys as well.

One of the babies which these children will help is a tiny thing of two months which weighs only five pounds 12 ounces. The Milk and Ice Association is having an unusually successful year with its tiny charges, for the majority of them are growing fast and only a few have been ill during the heat.

Weather Conditions.

Low pressure covers far the greater portion of the country today, and, as a result, there is much cloudiness and showers and thunderstorms were again general during the last 24 hours. The rains were mostly light, but heavy locally. At Omaha the 24-hour amount was 3.76 inches and at Freeport, on the Allegheny River, 2.44 inches.

The temperatures from the Plains states eastward continue normal or slightly above.

River Conditions.

Heavy rains over the Allegheny River between Lock No. 4 and Franklin caused a rise of 2.1 feet at Freeport and 3.0 feet at Lock No. 4 and heavy rains over the headwaters of the Beaver caused a sudden rise in that river. At Beaver Falls the stage is 9.1 feet, a rise of 4.5 feet. Over the Monongahela River the rainfall was light. Stage at Pittsburgh 12.8 feet; Dam No. 2, 8.3, and Dam No. 6, 11.9 feet. The dams have been lowered from No. 5 down, the others will probably be lowered today.

6 END HOMESTEAD MARATHON

30 CENTS AN HOUR

Three couples, who established a new world's marathon dance record in Stahl's Garden, Homestead, quit at 9:40 o'clock this morning with a mark of 565 hours and 35 minutes. The former record was 433 hours.

Frank Leach and Thelma Perry, Homestead; John Bendall and Dora Lewellyn, Homestead, and J. E. Shaffer, New Kensington, and Vera Humbertson, of Sharpsburg, who had been dancing since June 26, decided they had enough and would split the first and second prizes, 10 and 5 per cent of the net receipts. It was estimated each contestant would receive $175, about 30 cents an hour.

Mother of Eight Gets Court's Mercy

Mrs. Antonia McClosky, mother of eight children, aged 2 to 14, divorced July 13 and about to remarry, pleaded guilty yesterday in Criminal Court to charges of illegal liquor selling and keeping a disorderly house. She kept a boarding house in Coverdale and was accused of selling liquor to her boarders. She said her husband deserted her about two years ago. She was arrested in May. Judge Elder W. Marshall released her by a technical sentence of one day to the workhouse.

Kills Two, Self in Dash

International News Service.

NEW YORK, July 20.—A searching investigation was launched today in an effort to determine where John F. McCabe, a prisoner in the Bronx County Jail, obtained the two revolvers with which he killed two keepers in a jail break attempt last night. McCabe, who was faced with almost certain life imprisonment as a fourth offender under the Baumes law, shot and killed himself when other keepers blocked his escape.

Officials believe the weapons were smuggled to McCabe by a young Italian who visited him at the jail yesterday.

All available police were called and tear bombs and riot guns were rushed to the scene to prevent a further outbreak. Ten thousand persons crowded to the streets around the jail.

Keeper Morris Broderson, 34, was shot when he entered McCabe's cell to lead him out for an hour of exercise. Keeper Daniel Horgan, 53, who tried to stop McCabe on the floor below, was the next victim. Both died almost instantly. They were unable to protect themselves because the keepers were not allowed to carry guns on the theory that convicts might snatch them.

A horde of other keepers rushed up the stairs and blocked McCabe's escape. Cornered, he took his own life.

Eighty-eight other prisoners in the jail were thrown into an uproar.

District Attorney John E. McGeehan declared today that McCabe had attempted to interview him yesterday.

"He probably would have shot me, had I consented to see him," said McGeehan.

MOTORIST WINS FINE TEST

The drive of the Pittsburgh Motor Club to halt unlawful charges against motorists, achieved its first success last night, when Attorney Frank I. Zappala appeared before Burgess William S. Haddock of Dormont, and procured the discharge of Ernest M. Van Sant, of Dormont, charged with violating the automobile laws.

Van Sent alleged he was illegally arrested Tuesday night by County Patrolman Jack Eckard, who alleged reckless driving because Van Sant changed gears on the grade at West Liberty avenue, above Potomac avenue.

Van Sant said Eckard arrested him and lodged him in the Dormont police station, from which he was released by Capt. Wilson, of the Dormont police, on his own recognizance.

Van Sant was exonerated by Burgess Haddock, who discharged him after Attorney Zappala argued that the arrest was illegal. Zappala represented the Pittsburgh Motor Club, which has taken an active part in the fight to prevent impositions upon motorists, particularly the actions of "fining 'squires."

Attorney Zappala announced this morning that, in answer to several complaints from motorists who claim they were illegally arrested in Glenfield, this community is being closely watched and the cases are being prepared for action.

"These outrageous tactics must be stopped," Attorney Zappala said. "We are not fighting for the monetary consideration of these fines, but for the unfair and illegal manner in which officers and squires operate in many districts.'

In a case brought to the attention of the Pittsburgh Motor Club this morning, a motorist claims he was not only arrested without just cause, but, because he refused to pay a fine, he was placed in jail for a night.

REPLIES TO ATTACK

In answer to derogatory statements concerning the Pittsburgh Motor Club's campaign, made by Justice of the Peace J. H. McKenna, of East Deer township, and Justice of the Peace George B. Shields, of Wilkinsburg, Walter Rosenbaum, vice president of the club, explained the club's attitude.

"We are not warring against the businesslike minor judicial who conducts his office in accordance with the commonwealth's laws, but the club will, with the assistance of its attorney, Zappala, force all magistrates to conform strictly to Pennsylvania's code of justice."

C. H. Roth, secretary of the Pittsburgh Motor Club, in reply to a letter written by George A. Taylor, borough clerk of Whitaker, said:

"The borough of Whitaker has a record of being an auto trap, and in accordance with the promise of the Pittsburgh Motor Club to the motorists of Allegheny county, we shall defend any motorist unjustly arrested in that borough."

DO YOU KNOW YOUR OWN "TRAFFIC COP?"

FRIEND OF YOURS?

When the "traffic cop" at your corner smiles at you in the morning, afternoon and evening, can you call him by name? Few can but almost all would like to do so. The Sun-Telegraph each day publishes the picture of one of the city's traffic officers and his name on the following day. Do you know this man above?

YESTERDAY'S "TRAFFIC COP" WAS JOHN J. SULLIVAN, MARRIED, 1632 BROADWAY, SOUTH HILLS, WHO HAS SPENT 12 OF HIS 22 YEAR'S POLICE SERVICE AS A TRAFFIC OFFICER. IN 10 YEARS AT GAZETTE SQUARE, WHERE HE IS NOW, HE CLAIMS HE'S KNOWN EVERY NEWSPAPERMAN IN TOWN.

SPEEDING TO FUNERAL OF WIFE'S FATHER

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON,
International News Service.

ABOARD HOOVER TRAIN, SACRAMENTO, Cal., July 20.—Herbert Hoover, the first Californian ever nominated for the presidency, returned to his home state today on a mission of sorrow and with all "welcome home" festivities postponed until after the funeral of his father-in-law, Charles D. Henry.

The Henry obsequies will be held at 2 o'clock this afternoon in the chapel of the Leland Stanford University, which both Mr. and Mrs. Hoover attended years ago.

The Hoover train, swinging down out of the Sierra Nevadas early this morning past the famous California orchard country, was running far ahead of its original schedule in order to get the Republican nominee and his wife to their Palo Alto home in time to attend the funeral.

RECEPTIONS ABANDONED

All receptions were ordered abandoned, including a great welcome-home celebration in San Francisco. His train was routed from Oakland via the Dumbarton Bridge direct to Palo Alto, where it was due at 9:45 this morning, thus avoiding a ferry boat ride across San Francisco Bay and all stops in that city.

Despite the cloud cast upon his homecoming by the death of his father-in-law, Hoover was elated at returning to his home state. He crossed the California state line shortly before last midnight at Calvada and he immediately expressed his gratitude at being "home." He had sat up in his private car for the event.

"Every Californian crosses the state line with gratitude that God made his home state," said Hoover. "I return this time with a deep sense of responsibility that I may add to her distinction in that task for which she has presented me to the nation.

"I look forward to being able soon to express my thanks for this confidence."

MRS. HOOVER IN SECLUSION

Mrs. Hoover remained in strict seclusion aboard the train. Her sorrow at the loss of her father was increased by the fact that she was prevented from being with him in his last hours. She will continue in mourning at the Hoover home, probably until her distinguished husband is notified formally, on August 11, that he has been nominated for President by the Republican party.

Hoover came back to his home state for the first time since he was nominated and for the first time in a year, convinced that he will win the vast stretch of states across the northern tier of country from Wisconsin and Illinois to the Pacific Coast. As his train rolled over the Southern Pacific lines from Ogden, Utah, he was told he would carry two so-called "doubtful" states, Montana and Nevada, thus making a clean sweep of the Northwestern country.

N. H. Getchell, Republican state chairman of Nevada, and Sam Pratt, candidate for the Republican senatorial nomination, told him he would carry Nevada by a "big majority." So, too, did spokesmen in groups that greeted him at wayside stations. Getchell also called Hoover's attention to the results in the Montana primaries Tuesday, when the Republicans polled a larger vote than did the Democrats.

"Hoover will carry the whole mining section of the country," said Getchell. "He understands their problems, being a mining engineer, and this is the first time we have ever had the opportunity and privilege of voting for a Western man for President. He has slept under the same stars with us and there is that fellowship which will win him the whole West."

Gov. Frank D. Balzar, of Nevada, said the same thing when he boarded the Hoover train at Hazen.

SIDEWALKS OF PITTSBURGH

by HAVEY J. BOYLE

MILT CRANDALL, the boy promoter, is back in town, after his New York success with his marathon dance. This time he has a sort of dancing race, with which he hopes to intrigue and captivate the customers. He plans to carry this idea through the East and Middle West, before sailing in September to join up with Cold Cash Pyle, another promoter, in invading Europe with the marathon.

He came back from New York with a $38,000 bus, the property of Pyle, a cane, a gaudy cap and a vivid wardrobe. For awhile in New York it looked as if he might come home without a shirt. But the thing clicked after getting off to a bad start and Crandall agrees that all's well that ends well.

HIS big break in New York came when a newspaper carried a page of pictures of the dancers, a picture which portrayed great fatigue, and an editorial demanding that the affair be stopped. That aroused the curiosity of the public and shortly after that the receipts which were barely nothing in the first days leaped to $10,000 a day.

He went in to New York virtually unknown and came out with a scrapbook which he estimates will show a million words of publicity, exclusive of pictures in papers and nationally known magazines. The newspaper boys in New York who were amazed when Crandall showed them the publicity he got in Pittsburgh were to outdo many times the printed enthusiasm of Pittsburgh. Which goes to show that what seems like interesting reading in Pittsburgh will prove to be interesting in New York or any other place.

WE HAD heard the story and out of sympathy threw a little of our trade to the old couple that operated the roadside gasoline station. The man was between 65 and 70, and his wife seemed older. They had been talked into buying the station by an unscrupulous pair of swindlers. The aged couple had spent their lifetime savings, $10,000, in this venture that was worth about $2,000.

During the negotiations the swindlers had employed some 12 or 15 men, who, for a consideration, stopped at the gasoline station to purchase gas and oil. During the period of negotiations lasting about a week, business, as a result of the employed purchasers, was heavy enough to warrant a $10,000 figure.

But after the cash was handed out by the aged couple, business took a decided slump, and they are still there, holding as tragic a bag as ever invented by crooked men.

"How's business?" we asked the old man as he loaded our tank. "Not so good," he replied, "but we're hopin' it will pick up."

We are hopeful that the swindlers will reform and turn to something honest like making brooms or repairing shoes in some nice well-ventilated penal institution.

Speaking of crooks, we should like to know, by the way, if there is anyway one can feel unembarrassed upon asking the jeweler for the watch one left yesterday to be repaired. We can never look innocent even with the receipt. Maybe it's because the jeweler is used to squinting through that instrument he uses for inspecting his stock.

NAB SUSPECTS AFTER CHASE

Detected attempting to rob H. M. Kenneally, of 516 Arch street, near his home at 4 o'clock this morning, three highwaymen jumped into their auto and tried to run down Patrolman Joseph Scanlon, who answered Kenneally's cries.

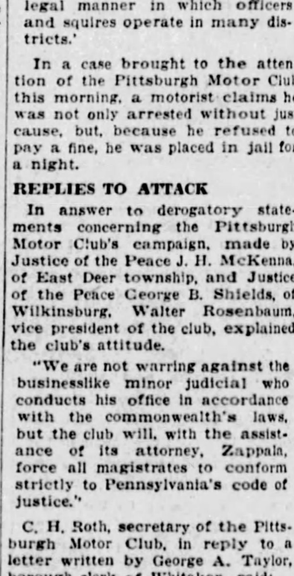
The patrolman obtained another auto and gave chase. He followed the men to a rooming house at 3608 Fifth avenue, got assistance from the Oakland Police Station, and arrested William Barry, 21, and Charles Barry, 23, of that address, and Milan Bachan, 22, of 1230 Sheffield street, Woodlawn. Bachan, who says he is a marathon dancer, was identified later by Kenneally as one of his assailants.

The prisoners were held for further investigation this morning, after being arraigned before Magistrate E. M. Hough.

INNOCENT MAN IS BEATEN

Lafayette Turfley, 22, Negro, of 2555 Center avenue, arrested Tuesday as a suspect after several girls had been annoyed in Schenley Park, was discharged at a hearing this morning before Magistrate E. M. Hough in Morals Court. No witnesses appeared against Turfley, who was attacked and severely beaten by a crowd of men before he was rescued by police who answered a riot call.

17, a Colonel



COL. WILLIAMS

You don't believe, do you, that Marion Williams, 17, of Paducah, Kaintucky, is a colonel? Well, Gov. Sampson, Kentucky, commissioned her for good work at the encampment of Junior Agricultural Boys and Girls in Washington.

SKYWARD

by Commander Richard E. Byrd

CHAPTER XIX.

WHEN the plane was pulled over planking from the ice foot the wheels sank deep down in the snow. We replaced them immediately with skis. Little did I realize then how soon those great looking skis which I had had made with a tremendous factor of safety would be broken like paper in the rough snow.

No one knew what a big plane like the Josephine Ford would do taking off the snow with skis. We had much to learn. We were truly pioneering.

The start of the landing field was about a mile from the ice foot. If it was a very big undertaking for my men to get the plane ashore it surely was a muscle-tearing job for them to get the plane and equipment up to the top of the long incline through the deep snow in a temperature 15 degrees below zero.

A field-kitchen was put up in the vicinity of the plane and meals were served in the open in the cold as we worked. No one even though of sitting down for a meal. Fuel drums were hauled up by hand and sled, heavy parts brought alongside, equipment and instruments for the flight assembled near by under cover, and all was made ready for a hop-off the minute we felt it safe to hazard a full flight.

We found that we had to dig down through the snow and build a fire and put the cans of oil in the fire before we could pour it into the engines, which had already been heated by a big fireproof canvas bag covering them, leading by a funnel down to a pressure gasoline stove below.

As there was no level stretch available that was smooth enough to take off from with a heavy load we were forced to try another new stunt—to take off going down hill. To get the snow on our take-off field smooth was the biggest job of all. The boys had to work 18 hours a day, but never did I hear a single complaint from any of them.

The plane's first attempt to take off for a trial flight ended in a snowdrift and nearly upset—which not only would have hurt us, but would have upset the expedition as well! A ski was broken to bits and the landing gear bent and broken.

Things then looked black, but the men refused to lose heart. Then twice again we broke our ski in pretty much the same way. We were having difficulties—that would never be experienced in the States—in getting off the snow with the lightest possible load. What would happen when we tried our total load of about 10,000 pounds?

Noville, Mulroy and "Chips" Gould the carpenter worked two days and two nights making new skis, whose strength was doubled by using some of our oars. There was no other hard wood available in all Kings Bay. Profiting by our first experience, we treated the bottom of the skis with a mixture of rosin and tar. The runway was fairly smooth for the second attempt and the plane was lightly loaded. We held our breath.

Graceful Takeoff

This time our airplane moved forward rapidly, then rose gracefully into the air. With Lieut. Noville and Lieut. Parker aboard, in addition to Bennett, she made a trial flight of more than two hours and showed a remarkably low gas consumption. The cold weather cowling on the engines came up to our highest expectations. Our worst fears were at an end.

At this point came a complete and sudden reversal of our plans. The trial flight and the low gasoline consumption showed that we could probably take off the snow with sufficient fuel to visit Cape Morris Jesup and the Pole in one nonstop flight. It had been our intention to land at Cape Morris Jesup. But since we could explore the whole distance without landing, the question naturally arose, "Why not go direct to the Pole and return via Cape Morris Jesup?"

Final preparations were completed on May 8. W. C. Haines, a meteorologist loaned us by the U. S. Weather Bureau, told us that the weather was right.

We warmed the motors; heated our fuel oil; put the last bit of fuel and food aboard; examined our instruments with care. Bennett and I climbed in and we were off. Off, but alas, not up. Our load proved too great, the snow too "bumpy," the friction of the skis too strong a drag. The plane simply would not get into the air. It went a little too far and got off the end of the runway at a terrific speed, jolted roughly over snow hummocks and landed in a snowdrift, coming within an ace of upsetting, which, of course, would have smashed the plane.

Men Worried

A dozen of our men ran up to us weary, heartsick and speechless. They had worked almost to the limit of their endurance to give us our chance. I waded through the deep snow to the port landing gear. Great! Both it and the ski were O. K. Then I stumbled to the other side and found that they also had stood the terrible pounding.

We took off hundreds of pounds of fuel to lighten the load; dug out the snowdrift and taxied the Josephine Ford up the hill to try again. We held another council, and concluded to work through the night lengthening and smoothing the runway. At the same time we would take out of the plane as much equipment as we could spare, and attempt a take-off with a little less fuel.

In searching the plane for gear with which we might dispense, I found that nearly every man had hidden some souvenir aboard. However, I never did find a ukulele secreted aboard by the notorious "Ukulele Ike" Konter. He produced it out of the plane after we returned from the Pole.

Weather Perfect

The weather was still perfect. We decided to try to get off as near midnight as possible, when the night cold would make the snow harder and therefore easier to take off from. Finally, at a half hour past midnight Greenwich time, all was in readiness to go. Bennett and I had had almost no sleep for 36 hours, but that did not bother us. Dr. O'Brien and Capt. Grennan begged us to get a good sleep before making another attempt. But our opportunity was at hand.

We carefully iced the runway in front of the skis (so that we could make a quick start), while Bennett and Kincaid made their motor preparations. The crew put the finishing touches on the runway.

Bennett came up for a last talk and we decided to stake all on getting away—to give the Josephine Ford full power and full speed—and get off or crash at the end of the runway in the jagged ice.

A few handclasps from our comrades and we set our faces toward our goal and the midnight sun, which at that moment lay almost due north.

TOMORROW—The daring dash northward that met with success.

Will Rogers Says

NEWTON, Kans., July 20.

Al Smith did a thing the other day that I don't think has received enough publicity. It was a Godsend to America, and the smartest thing a candidate ever said.

Some photographers wanted him to pose in the act of laying bricks. He said, "I can't lay bricks, and any bricklayer that saw it would know I couldn't. That's a baloney picture, and I am not going to stand for any baloney pictures during this campaign"

Now, he may lose the photographers' vote, but he will gain the entire picture-reading public instead.

I will always claim that those Coolidge cowboy baloney pictures last summer drove him out of the White House four years early.

Yours, WILL ROGERS.

MEDITATIONS of a MARRIED WOMAN

by HELEN ROWLAND

THE MISSION OF MEN'S CLUBS

"WHAT are men's clubs for?" demands a feminist.

Men's clubs, dear heart, are for the salvation of wives and the escape of husbands.

They are the only remaining sanctuary, where a man can get away from WOMEN and be alone with his kind!

They are at once a panacea to men, a deliverance to women and a boon to marriage. Without them, few couples would live together long enough to celebrate their golden wedding.

HELEN ROWLAND

Never, in the history of the world, were men's clubs such a blessing to humanity as they are today, when a man is surrounded, north, south, east and west, by women; and even his once sacred haunts, the business office, the barber shop, the tobacco shop, the grill and the smoking car are sweetly invaded by the persuasive sex.

In his daily life, every man is practically smothered by femininity. He is shunted from the house to the office by one woman, and there taken in hand by another woman. Women order his day, keep tabs on his pursuits, prescribe his diet, nag him, mother him, spoil him, boss him, rule him or emote over him.

No man is ever free from the gentle feminine touch on the reins—except when he escapes to the sanctuary of a men's club.

Then and there, only, can he BE HIMSELF, and get back to hi- HE-ness.

There, only, can he stretch his soul and express his masculine opinion about things; put his feet on the divan, throw his ashes on the floor, eat all the things that disagree with him, and, for a brief while, feel once more like the Lord of Creation!

Meanwhile, the clubman's wife gets an evening off with full pay, and a chance to do those things she has been longing to do, but never has time to do with a man hanging 'round to be amused, petted and waited on.

There are moments when the most devoted of wives wants to be ALONE; to get into mental deshabille; to cream her face and get her beauty sleep; to run around to a nice, gooey, feminine play with her women friends, or to feed her soul on a good book. Where to park hubby, while she consorts with her own kind, is a problem—unless he belongs to a club or a few lodges.

Nothing holds a man and a woman together like a little separation! Nothing gives them such a fresh zest for each other's society as an evening away from each other. Nothing so relieves a man of that "smothered" feeling around the house as the knowledge that he can get OUT of it!

Next to a graveyard, the safest place to park a restless husband, who has gotten on your nerves, is a man's club! They have done more than anything else to turn matrimony from a prison into a privilege!

Love Means Trust

Drawn by Dorothy Flack

© 1928 by Int'l Feature Service, Inc. (Great Britain rights reserved.)

WHEN you think Love has come to you, do you ever stop to ask yourself if you also trust? "I love him so I can't bear him out of my sight a second!" Haven't you heard lovely girls say this oh, hundreds and hundreds of times? I have. Maybe I've said it myself. Maybe you have, too. But—did you finally find your REAL happiness with the one of whom you said just that? I'll bet you didn't, for when it comes to real, true love—well, the basis and foundation and almost the whole part of it is TRUST.

When one truly loves one absolutely trusts. No jealousy of thought or action or word ever enters to spoil true love. Trust is not only the highest compliment of love, it IS love. For love without trust isn't love at all, you know. When you can say to yourself, "I love and I TRUST!" then you'll know you've found the real happiness of life—the only happiness that can bring lasting peace and joy and the fulfilment of your dreams.

Madge Pays a Visit to Mrs. Ticer

"IN the first place," Mrs. Ticer said when at her insistence I had taken her most comfortable rocking-chair and she had drawn another up facing me, "don't you worry one bit about Jerry's saying anything about that sketching Mr. Graham has been doing of Miss Lincoln. When he came home from your house he was just bubbling over with the joke he'd got on you, as he called it. You told him, didn't you, to keep you posted or something like that?"

I nodded—she gave me no time for any further answer, even if I had wished to make one.

"He thought that was awful funny, Jerry did, but I knew, of course, you'd said it just to stop his mouth, and I knew, too—I'm not blind—that for some reason or other, Miss Lincoln didn't want anybody outside to know about Mr. Graham making pictures of her. I'd be mighty proud if it was me, but she has her reasons, I suppose, and I noticed she was mighty careful to do her posing when she thought nobody was around. But you can't keep Jerry from finding out things—he's almost as big a snooper as your Katie"—she interrupted herself to give a comfortable, amused laugh at my little maid's well-known proclivity for eavesdropping—"but when he came home and told me what he's said to you, I first questioned him to see whether he'd mentioned the thing to anybody else. I didn't want to scare him into lying, although he's pretty truthful even when he is scared, Jerry is. But when I got it out of him that you were the only person he'd mentioned it to, believe me, I gave him down the banks. You can bet he won't open his mouth on that subject for one month of Sundays. So as far as our house is concerned, you don't need to be afraid of nothing leaking out, for Sam hasn't seen nothing—he's been down in the fields all the time and, you know, if he had he couldn't have kept it to himself a second. He'd have had to run and tell me."

She chuckled and I smiled with her at our mutual knowledge of the peculiarities of lanky Sam Ticer, her husband.

"But if that Katie of yours heard Jerry talking, or get any inkling of that sketching, you'd better put her in a dark closet with a gag in her mouth," my neighbor said grimly, and I suppressed a smile at this fresh manifestation of the ancient grudge which Mrs. Ticer bears my little maid. She would not really hurt Katie for the world, and she often has helped her royally in domestic emergencies, but the two women are naturally antagonistic, and their association when working together at the farmhouse is always an armed truce most amusing to the onlookers.

"I do not think Katie heard anything," I said, "but if she did I shall make sure that she does not repeat it. And thank you so much for your thoughtfulness in making sure of Jerry's silence. We really are doing all this for Miss Lincoln. Mr. Graham does not care who knows that he has made the sketches of her for a book he is illustrating. But Miss Lincoln has very strong reasons, I believe, for keeping the matter a secret, at least until the book is published."

"I only hope she's alive at that time," Mrs. Ticer said sepulchrally.

There was something so significant in her voice that I found myself leaning forward tensely in my chair.

"Why, Mrs. Ticer!" I found myself exclaiming banally. "What do you mean?"

HOW TO KEEP WELL

by Royal S. Copeland M.D.
U.S. Senator from New York

Keep Watch on Baby's Appetite

THERE are many things about a baby which a young mother is not expected to know. I read of a mother who just presented her husband with the twenty-second child and all the brothers and sisters are living! That mother must know a lot about babies. But the average mother cannot be expected to recognize every sign of approaching trouble, or to properly analyze the significance of every little symptom.

DR. COPELAND

To a trained observer the scales, the skin, the eyes and the temper tell everything about a baby. They mean little to the mother. She is often in doubt. She has many a worry over the infant.

Whenever the mother suspects something is wrong, but does not know just what it is, she should consult the doctor or go to a baby health station for advice. It is not well to delay. Many times the welfare and, perhaps, the life of the little one depends on the right care, applied early. Loss of appetite, particularly, is one of the symptoms which should not be overlooked.

You cannot be governed in your opinion of the child wholly by the appetite of the baby. There may be loss of weight from loss of appetite, with refusal of food. There may be loss of weight from indigestion due to the indulgence of an over-stimulated appetite. A ravenous appetite may be due to abnormal conditions. In short, then, the appetite is not a positive sign of health, or of the lack of health.

Failure of the baby to take his food may be due to one of several causes. Let us see what some of them are:

A sore throat or a sore mouth may be the cause. It hurts to swallow, or it hurts to feed. Naturally, the infant declines to eat because of the pain when it is attempted. The delicate tissues may be injured by something the baby has put in its mouth or, if it has reached the age, there may be intense soreness of the gums from teething.

Probably the most common cause of lost appetite is wrong feeding. By this I mean the feeding of wrong food, or giving too much of the right food. Both are common faults.

Perhaps the most frequent mistake in infant feeding is the giving of a mixture too strong in its milk content. Reducing the amount of milk and sugar, or giving less top milk may speedily restore the appetite.

This is a very general statement, of course. It must not be considered as anywhere near infallible. Instead of acting on your own account, it is better in every case to consult your doctor and follow the advice he gives after a personal examination of the child.

Another piece of general advice is to cut down the number of feedings, increasing the interval between them. You know, you have no appetite if your meals are too close together. It is the same with a baby.

Acting on these suggestions will be likely to increase the appetite and prepare the child for a richer mixture and a larger quantity of food. But don't neglect to seek your doctor's advice if the trouble does not yield promptly. It is much easier for him to bring about speedy relief if he is called early. It is, indeed, true of baby's ailments that "a stitch in time saves nine."

TOMORROW'S HOROSCOPE

Saturday, July 21

THE energies and spirit of initiative and enterprise may be found to be under high stimulus on this day, according to the lively reign of predisposing planets. The attention may be turned to new projects or to the development of better or more constructive measures in employment. The mind may be discerning and responsible in its innovations, but nevertheless, there are seen some financial hazards which should be taken into account. Be careful in personal contacts.

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves under fine stimulus to attack large and bold enterprises or to instill new measures in employment, but it is suggested that constructive plans take into account certain financial risks or extravagances. Likewise be cautious in personal afflictions.

A child born on this day may be resourceful, enterprising and under high impulse to engage in bold and adventurous projects, but its speculative tendencies should be properly controlled lest there be loss or extravagance; this personally as well.

The thing achieved is temporary, but the development of power to achieve is permanent. — LILLIAN WHITING.

Gold, Jewels, Wealth, but Bob and Verna Are Only Interested in Love

CHAPTER LVI.

"WHAT does the Sahib see?" There was a strange eagerness in Mindar Singh's voice. "What does the Sahib see?" he repeated.

"A light back there on the schooner," Bob Kingsley answered. "It's a deuced big one though, and it's growing bigger." He sucked in his breath sharply, suddenly, and dug an oar into the water to swing the boat around. "Lord in Heaven!" he cried. "She's afire!"

"Turn not the boat, Sahib!" Mindar Singh said softly—and laughed.

"But she's afire, I tell you!" Bob Kingsley cried again. "She hasn't any other boats. I've no love for any one of them aboard her, and we couldn't take but a few into this boat anyway—but I can't stand by without doing what I can."

"Does the Sahib see what I hold in my hand?"

There was an ominous significance in Mindar Singh's tones. Bob Kingsley leaned sharply forward. Yes, he saw! Mindar Singh held a leveled revolver.

"My God!" Bob Kingsley breathed helplessly. "Where did you get that? Have you gone mad, Mindar Singh?"

"I die shortly, but I am not mad," said Mindar Singh grimly. "Row again, Sahib, but row always toward the shore, for I would do no evil unto the Sahib, who likewise, and the Miss Sahib also, has suffered at the hands of those who sought our lives; but if the Sahib turn toward the ship, then will I kill the Sahib where he sits. Does the Sahib hear? A knife I took from the dog who was at the wheel, but I had greater need for it than to give it to the Miss Sahib for the cutting of the Sahib's bonds, for with the knife I went into the cabin of drunken slumber where Chen-shu and Java Dick lay, and their sleep was the sounder for my coming, and there I found this weapon. Will the Sahib hear more? During all the day before the sailing was made from Singapore I, Mindar Singh, the prisoner, was kept hidden below the schooner's deck, which place was empty save for the leavings of palm thatching with which at one time the boat must have been laden; but also the place smelled rankly with the odor of the kerosene that, as the Sahib knows, is brought in great quantities from Sumatra, and in which trade, it was in my mind, the ship had likewise taken part at one time, for, not only was there the smell, but the skin of the ship was yet greasy with the oil. Therefore, Sahib, when I had left the cabin of Chen-shu and Java Dick, I descended into the below-decks of the vessel, and I set a fire where it would be for a time hidden, but which, when at last it was observed, would be raging so that no man could quench it, and the ship would be consumed and all thereon should perish; and to make this the more certain I fastened the entrance to that place where the men of the crew slept. Shall the Sahib undo that which I have done? Let the Sahib row, or he, too, will die, and the Miss Sahib with him. What is written is written, and so shall it come to pass, for not one of those who have brought me to torment greater than could be endured, and have brought me to my death, shall live! Row, Sahib—would the Sahib sacrifice his life to no avail?"

Bob Kingsley, his face drawn and set, glanced over his shoulder. Verna was crouched on the seat, her face buried in her hands. He looked astern. It was no longer a light—great flame-tongues were leaping skyward; the schooner was ablaze from bow to stern.

"Row, Sahib — toward the shore!"

Bob Kingsley began to row again. An instant's hesitation, and he knew that Mindar Singh would fire. He rowed on and on, his mind in chaos and in turmoil. "Not one shall live!" It was strangely like his own oathsworn phrase: "Every last one of them!" It was the end—the end of every last one of those who had taken Tom Kingsley's life at Kalawa! There was no chance for any one of those aboard the schooner out there—even those who were not trapped below, but who had remained sprawled upon the deck, were too far gone in drunkenness to do anything to help themselves. What could they do? Throw this or that overboard and cling to it! They would not cling long!

Every last one of them! It had come about as he had never pictured it. Grim justice! Yes it was that! Had he been Mindar Singh, and they had—oh, God, what was the use!

He rowed on and on. He must have been rowing for a great length of time, for the blaze out there was not so vivid now—or was it because he was now so far away? Far away! The lurid flame that had lighted up the sky could easily have been seen from the shore itself. A pyre!

"Row, Sahib!"

That was Mindar Singh again! At intervals, in parrot-fashion, Mindar Singh had kept on saying that. "Row, Sahib!" And Mindar Singh still held a leveled revolver. It was as though the man feared that even at the last he would in some way be outwitted and that the boat would turn back.

It must be an hour now since the boat had left the schooner—it could not be any less. Bob Kingsley's back and arms ached. Verna, he knew, had lain down in the bottom of the boat. Perhaps she was asleep. He hoped she was. The horror of——

Had Anis Killed Nicky? Emily Tries to Reach Kent but Fails

EMILY wished to say something comforting, to offer this tragic, beaten girl a bit of sympathy. But there was nothing which could help. Of course Stella had started wrong; she had been at a disadvantage from the beginning. But Skeets was another like Kingdon Coles; given a twist in her own disposition and a father like Peter Brent and she, herself, might now be in Stella's place.

"My folks are crazy about the boy," Stella went on. "We're going home to live and mother can help take care of him. I'll have to find work. Skeets will do nothing for us. You don't know of anything?"

Emily thought of the job they had meant to make for Kitten in the shop and flushed with eagerness. "Maybe I do, Stell. The pay wouldn't be so much but we'd like to have you."

"If it's only enough to get along on. All I want now is a chance to be quiet and forget. I feel sometimes if it wasn't for the baby I couldn't keep going."

It would be another month before she could leave the boy, but she was going home in a few days. She couldn't stand her life with Skeets longer than that.

So it was arranged; Emily would speak to Frances about the place. She was sure it would be all right.

She carried away the memory of Stella's faint smile. Very weary it seemed, very hopeless.

Kitten walked with her in the evening. They strolled up toward North Mountain, past blossoming hedges fragrant with June, rather silently, feeling the menace of what hung over them.

At the end of the road they stopped while a long, green roadster circled the small park and went back down the River Road with a whining of gears.

As the car dashed under the street light Kitten threw herself forward, almost beneath the wheels; only the driver's reckless swerve saved her. Afterward she stood with her teeth knocking together, clutching at her sister's arm.

"It's the woman, Em; Driving that car—the one that came to the Inn. I saw her right in the light. She's the woman!"

Emily walked along calmly enough, Kitten chattering at her side. But her mind had gone blank. She, too, had seen the woman in the car.

It was Avis Rossiter.

CHAPTER XLIX.

SHE didn't sleep that night.

A dozen times she said to herself, "One thing to do now. Better rest. Busy day tomorrow, a hard day—"

But sleep wouldn't come. Her brain was filled with colored lights, each flashing on and off with a searching glare.

Avis and Marty standing at the railing above the beach; Avis begging him to flee to some Jersey Gretna Green and marry her in the night.

Kitten's failure to describe the woman who came to the inn excepting as she thought her beautiful and with a "kind of funny way of talking." Avis' clipped speech might seem "funny" to Kitten.

The viewpoint of women like Avis. "An' didn't the Grainger baggage step up a-grinnin'," Mrs. Briggs had said. "'Buck up, ol' thing,' says she, tough-like, 'a married lady can get away with murder these days.'"

And later, "Her but a few months married, sittin' like a brazen thing a-makin' eyes at the Wickert . . ."

Avis and Nicky Wickert . . .

Had Avis killed Nicky Wickert?

Well, they would have to find out, Marty and the others. She would see Marty first thing in the morning, tell him there had indeed been a woman who came to the inn. Strange that it should be Avis Rossiter, patrician, exotic—

Her thought turned suddenly to Kent. Would he be obliged to prosecute his own sister, to gather proof so the jury would indict her? Would he do that, believing her innocent as he had believed Kitten, yet offering what evidence he could get that she was guilty?

Frances had explained enough so Emily knew this would bring about the end of his political career. Even if Avis was freed the scandal would be such that Morrow's ring would force him out of office. A tragic thing that he must pay for the sins of others! And that she must be the one to force this on him. Yet she could do nothing else.

Brooding through the night, suspicion came to her at last. No one had seen Avis at the inn save her sister and the man who now was dead. Supposing Kent were to laugh at Kitten's story and send his own sister away. That would save him; to her distorted imagination it loomed as the natural thing for him to do. Easy enough, too, for not even Marty believed Kitten.

Her heart insisted that Kent was square, but her mind asked if he would be willing to make this sacrifice.

She was doubtful and shaken when she tried the door of Morrow's office. It was barely 9 o'clock and the door was locked. So she crossed the street and opened up the shop, busying herself about the showroom with an anxious eye on the clock. A half hour later she went back.

Through the window she had seen that the Judge was not yet in but the outer office was open. She entered and sat down to wait. There was a murmur of conversation in one of the rooms, the room with "Mr. Nolan" on the door. She recognized a voice as Marty's.

His visitor was a woman; it took Emily some time to place the simpering, affected accent. Anne Morrow was there with him.

Emily thought she might knock and ask him to step outside for a moment, hear what she had to tell. So vital it was and she had to wait while they said light, frivolous things to each other!

But she couldn't break in on them that way, meet Anne's derisive smile.

They came forward and she watched their shadows on the ground glass. The shadows merged suddenly; Marty was putting his arms around Anne; now her face was lifted, he was kissing her.

A hot, unreasonable anger clutched the waiting girl; she felt neglected, very miserable there with her trouble while they carried on their love making.

A blind impulse brought her to her feet and sent her out of the building. She hid away in the back room of the shop to think. She would have to go back, of course, but she'd wait. Telephone first, be sure Marty was alone. Or perhaps he would come and talk to her here.

But when she telephoned he was out. He had left town for the day, the operator told her.

Nothing to do but wait. After all, she reflected, a day more or less made small difference.

She went home rather early and found Agnes alone. Mr. Rossiter had telephoned and Kitten had gone to see him at his Lyall office. Agnes was very low.

"Only harm comes to us from that family, Emmy. They killed your poor father, and now they'd put murder on that innocent baby."

"Hush, Muz. It isn't the Rossiters; it's just that we're unlucky, I guess." But she couldn't make it sound convincing.

Peels Off Freckles-Sunburn
A quick easy way to correct a discolored, sallow, pimpled or freckled complexion is to use pure mercolized wax, nightly, like a cold cream. The wax flecks off the sunburned, tanned or freckled skin in tiny particles, a little each day, until it has been entirely removed. Then the youthful skin beneath comes forth, as clear, smooth and delicately tinted as a girl's. Mercolized wax brings out the hidden beauty. At all drug stores. To quickly remove wrinkles and restore facial contour, use as an astringent 1 ounce powdered saxolite and ½ half pint witch hazel.

dice and place in a buttered baking dish. Cover with bread crumbs and grated cheese and bake. If cooked potatoes are used they will be sufficiently cooked in 15 minutes, but if you use raw potatoes allow them 50 minutes.

Put on a large pot of water and when boiling briskly add the ears of corn. Cook 10 minutes and serve.

CHOP together 1 green pepper, 1 red pepper, 2 cups of cabbage, 3 sweet pickles, 1 small onion, cover with a cup of sweet pickle juice or 1 cup of vinegar, ½ cup of sugar, 1 teaspoonful of salt, ⅛ teaspoonful of black pepper and 1 teaspoonful of celery seed. Serve on beds of lettuce.

For the raspberry Bavarian cream soak 1 level tablespoonful of gelatine in ¼ cup of cold water for 5 minutes and dissolve by standing the cup containing the mixture in hot water. To 1 cup of crushed raspberries and 1 tablespoonful of lemon juice, strain the gelatine into the fruit, add ¼ cup of sugar. When the sugar is dissolved set in a pan of ice water and stir until the mixture begins to thicken, then fold in 1½ cups of heavy cream beaten until stiff. Turn into a wet mold and chill.

BREAKFAST is a very important meal to the growing child. It not only affects his health and development, but its importance is felt in the difference in the quality of the work he is capable of doing in school.

You would not expect your furnace to heat up of its own accord without adding coal. The little bodies need fuel to keep the engines of the body and mind in proper working condition.

Send your child to school with a good breakfast tucked away in his little "tummy."

IF humanly possibly in the morning's rush, make breakfast the keynote to a perfect day. Serve it daintily, with shades up, and all the sunshine you can get. Insist upon cheerfulness and courtesy. Personally inspect little Mary's and Johnny's feet for rubbers, hands for mittens, coats snuggly buttoned, and caps well down over ears in cold or wet weather. Kiss each child goodby and send them forth with the spirit to conquer, fortified by a nourishing breakfast and inspired by mother's chumminess.

Use the following for an outline in preparing your child's morning meal. Vary the cereal, but use the whole grain variety by preference.

Orange or other fresh or stewed fruit, buttered toast, cereal with milk or cream, cocoa made with milk or a glass of milk, bacon or an egg, an attractive place to eat, a smile from mother and dad.

Don't omit the last item, it is quite important.

CHILDREN adore parties and if properly planned the party may be quite as much fun for the grown-up preparing it as it is for the little ones upon whom you have spent so much loving thought and care.

For the good of the children, arrange to have the party either at noon, or late in the afternoon, so that the refreshments may take the place of luncheon or supper for the little ones, and the regular schedule of their meals need not be disturbed.

WE must have ice cream and cake, a party is not a party without ice cream and the following menu will be acceptable to all ages between four and nine and for older children leave out the soup and substitute one of your favorite sandwiches. Let us have:

BEAT the egg yolk until thick and lemon colored and set to one side. Beat the whites on a large platter or in a big bowl and use the whip type of beater, as the more air whipped into the whites the lighter your cake will be.

When the whites are half whipped add the cream of tartar and whip until firm, but not too dry, then add your sugar, then your flavoring, finally the flour. Both the sugar and the flour must be added gradually, for if heavily "dumped" in you will lose some of the air so painstakingly whipped in, and the air retained is the secret of good cake baking.

Cook in an ungreased angelfood cake pan in a moderate oven for 45 minutes. Cool in the pan turned upside down; this makes the cake lighter.

Wise Babies Select Intelligent Mothers

by Mary Blake

I really marvel at the young mothers of today. Their wisdom is nothing short of astounding. No child of theirs is permitted, in spite of the most doting of grandparents, to play the role of new toy for the diversion of the family. The rights of the modern baby are firmly respected, his routine sternly maintained. His baths and feedings and sleep follow each other in the most orderly precision. No wonder he is a calm, healthy, good-natured baby, easy to care for, steady in gains.

I admit that there are exceptions, because not every baby gets a perfect start. When there are feeding problems to be solved, the mother's responsibilities are heavy. But baby specialists today have such a broad knowledge that it usually takes but a little while to discover the right food for any infant.

The best milk for your baby

On one thing you will find that all doctors agree. For the baby just starting out in life, breast-feeding is a great advantage over artificial feeding.

If your baby must be artificially fed, let your doctor be the one to advise you. With his wide experience with many babies, he can guide you to the right substitute for mother's milk.

He may advise you to use Carnation Milk in the feeding of your baby. If he does, you can feel well satisfied with his choice. He has selected it for very definite reasons. The first is that it is safe. Milk for the feeding of a tiny infant must be of the purest quality, produced under the most sanitary conditions. It must be whole milk, sufficiently rich in butter fats. Even if you can find such qualifications in bottled milk, the quality is almost sure to vary from day to day.

Carnation Milk is the purest of whole milk, produced from selected herds, under strict sanitary regulations.

The quality is of controlled uniformity; the butter-fat content is never less than 7.8 per cent.

In addition to its purity and uniformly high quality, Carnation Milk offers another advantage. It is so carefully sterilized, so free from germs and bacteria, and sealed so perfectly against contamination that no further pasteurization is necessary. You merely add pure water to replace that removed in evaporation and you have pure milk.

A very important advantage which Carnation offers in the feeding of infants is its easy digestibility, due to the "homogenization" which breaks up the fat globules into extremely minute particles, very readily assimilable even by a baby with a weak digestion.

Of course the feeding of babies is but one of Carnation Milk's important uses. It is wonderful for all cooking, better in results, economical, convenient and dependable. Why not send for the Carnation Cook Book? It is free. Address Carnation Milk Products Co., 100 Carnation Bldg., Oconomowoc, Wis.

Safe For Babies

In the feeding of infants, Carnation Milk is a safe choice. It is whole milk of high quality—pure, sterilized, uniform—and available anywhere. Because it is "homogenized," it is particularly easy of digestion. Ask your doctor.

SPEAKING OF SPORTS

BY HARRY KECK
SPORTS EDITOR

BILL TILDEN, ousted as a member of the United States Davis Cup team, and with his entire amateur career likely at an end because of the decision that he had made himself ineligible by violating the tennis player-writer rule in reporting the Wimbledon matches while playing in them, could not be very much blamed if he should decide to take a little hand in the game of tennis politics himself and stir up matters. For it must be galling to the veteran, who has given his best efforts to the United States Lawn Tennis Association for years, to have the whip cracked over him at this time, when he was trying to hold on just long enough to bridge the gap until a new crop of youngsters could be developed to fill his shoes and those of Billy Johnston and others who retrieved the Davis Cup from Australia a number of years ago and safely defended it until age proved too big a handicap and the prized trophy was lost to France, which is defending it this year.

THE player-writer rule in tennis is a joke. It says that a player may write for publication, but not about a tournament in which he is competing. In other words, he is an amateur when he is writing for pay about something that he has no opportunity to learn about personally and a professional when he writes from first hand observation and experience. Tilden is one of the few stars who write their own stuff and it is good, sound, intelligent and constructive reading, too. And his articles are in demand by newspapers.

If the powers that be in amateur athletics some times wonder why almost all of the good men become pros they have only to turn a mirror on themselves and their methods. Such a silly rule as that which has barred Tilden from the Davis Cup play should be laughed off the books. Even France, with the prospect of facing America in the Davis Cup challenge round, cabled the United Sates tennis moguls asking them to rescind their action and keep Big Bill in there doing his bit.

ELIZABETH RYAN WINS IN GERMAN TOURNEY

DUSSELDORF, Germany, July 20.—(AP.)—Elizabeth Ryan, veteran Californian, won three matches as the international tennis tournament got under way.

In the women's singles, Miss Ryan defeated Frau Lang, 6-1, 6-0. Paired with Ronald Boyd, of Argentina, she advanced in the mixed doubles by eliminating Frau Bergartz and Meinzel, 6-3, 6-3, and in the women's doubles she and Cecelie Aussem, of Germany, defeated Frau Will Roth and Frau Krush, 6-0, 6-0.

Champ Set On K. O. Win

By GENE TUNNEY,
Heavyweight Champion of the World.

SPECULATOR, N. Y., July 20.—After an hour and a half on the road early in the morning during which I got in a goodly share of shadow boxing, Dr. Robert Shea, who arrived in camp Wednesday from New York, put me through a severe examination.

GENE TUNNEY

He has been my medical mentor for 10 years looking after me through all my years in the ring. After the examination, which took an hour, he pronounced me in better condition than at any time in my boxing career.

Heart, lungs, eyes, ears, hands, blood pressure, muscles, nerves, reflexes all appear to be in excellent shape.

He found a vast improvement in cardiac reserve or heart reserve force as well as improvement in nerve muscle 's co-ordination. This was particularly pleasing due to the many thories advanced regarding my ability to go the 15 rounds with Heeney next week.

He predicts that I will do better over the longer route due to the immense amount of stored heart energy which will evidence itself as the rounds are checked off.

Another finding was the enlargement of the shoulder girdle muscles giving added strength to punching power.

CONDITION SUPERB

This superb condition he attributes to plenty of rest and training in moderation rather than severe concentration during a short time before a bout.

He expressed himself as well pleased with his "patient," who shows no signs of scars or injuries though "Bob" has been in my dressing room after many bouts when he feared there would be permanent marks as souvenirs of strenuous engagements.

Several critics who have watched Tom Heeney throughout his conquests of the winter season tell me that I will be unable to hit him successfully with straight right hand punches to the head.

It is no secret in camp that I intend to knock out the New Zelander, if possible, with that punch. If Tom proves too durable, sharp right-hand counters, following Tom's leads or my own left jabs, will be depended upon to bring the victory home in 15 rounds.

So it appears rather serious when the experts tell me that Tom's style of fighting as he weaves into action with his head down is exactly the sort of offensive calculated to silence my best weapons. But I have an ace or two in reserve and a few reasons to explain why Tom never will be able to get away from right hand.

HIT DEMPSEY

In the first place, Jack Dempsey, a hobbing, weaving target accepted as an even more elusive foeman than Heeney, was whipped twice by right hand punches to the head. In general, Heeney follows Dempsey's style of attack, head low, body shifting, possibly with more recourse to his arms, wrapped about his head as an added defense, as he plows in.

I was able to hit Dempsey with right hand smashes to the head because I prodded him constantly off balance with left jabs, punches that jolted the former champion and scrambled his plan of attack as he plowed forward. Heeney, if he attacks a great deal, must contend with the same thing—my left jab—and today it is working to perfection.

However, I am not going into this battle, the most formidable of my entire career, without weapons to use in case Heeney manages to evade my right hand in the early rounds.

For some time now I have been perfecting a left hook to the head, following with a short right hand slam to the body that can be used in close quarters. That will be my secondary defense. If Tom gets by the left jabs and right crosses, and I fail to see how he can without changing his style materially, I shall be waiting for him with those short body punches.

Heeney Works Before Notables

FAIRHAVEN, N. J. July 20.—(AP.)—Tom Heeney boxed before the critical eyes of James J. Corbett, one-time world's heavyweight champion; Jack Kearns, former manager of Jack Dempsey, and other boxing dignataries yesterday, traveling four brisk rounds against two sparring mates.

The terrific heat forced the challenger to cut down his workout, but he looked almost as impressive as he did Wednesday. Because of the heat, Heeney's handlers have decided to have him lay off today. He is losing weight too rapidly, they say. Before his workout yesterday he weighed 205 pounds and afterward 200¼ pounds.

Corbett, who was champion seven years before Heeney was born, got his first glimpse of the challenger. He declared the New Zealander appeared to be in fine shape, adding that he reminded him of Tom Sharkey. He predicted the battle between Heeney and Gene Tunney in the Yankee Stadium would be a better fight than the public anticipates.

Jack Kearns also visited the camp and saw Tom work out.

Kearns is of the opinion that all Heeney needs in his battle with Tunney would be a competent referee who would force Gene to break every time the champion clinched.

A stir was caused when Mickey Walker, world's middleweight champion, appeared in camp ready to step a couple of rounds, but his offer was declined. Charley Harvey, Heeney's manager, explained that Walker, with his bobbing, weaving style might accidently butt Heeney or otherwise injure him and that it was too late in the training campaign to take any chances of injury.

Heeney boxed with the same two mates, James J. Braddock and James J. Lawless. Braddock started in whirlwind fashion, jabbing Tom with lefts. This barrage knocked Heeney's protective headgear down over his eyes, and he was continually forced to jerk it up on his head. Heeney slipped inside Braddock's guard several times, ripping left hooks to the body. He was even faster against Lawless.

MRS. STALLINGS SAYS HUSBAND IMPROVING

MACON, Ga., July 20.—(AP.)—While physicians today continued to pronounce the conditions of George Stallings, Montreal baseball magnate, as "unchanged and critical," his wife said he was improving.

Stallings has been confined in a local hospital for more than a week, having been brought here from his country estate at Haddock, Ga., when his condition became, in the words of his physicians, "hopeless."

DOUBLEHEADER HERE TO START AT 1:45 P. M

The Pirate officials announced today that the double-header with the Brooklyn team scheduled for tomorrow would begin at 1:45 o'clock instead of 2 p. m.

The two clubs will play a double header in Brooklyn Sunday.

SPORT COMMENT

by JAMES J. LONG

...tes' Part Is to Start Right in Again for New Winning Streak — McWeeny Allows Only One Run in Twenty Innings — Mat Champ Thinks He Could Take Tunney in Two Minutes.

SOMETIMES it's a feast one day and a famine the next in baseball. The downfall of the Pirates yesterday and the breaking of their longest winning streak of the year after they had extended it to nine consecutive victories is a case in point.

On Wednesday, the Bucs piled up 16 runs and 21 hits against Boston and won by a margin of 12 tallies. Yesterday they could not push a solitary run across the plate and lost after the shutout route when a few runs would have sufficed to land them on top.

Fred Fussell.

One day they had 12 runs to spare above the number required for victory, and the next day not a single Pirate was able to complete the circuit of the bases.

THAT'S baseball, and it shows that nothing can be taken for granted even when a club appears to be swinging into an abnormal hitting streak.

But it doesn't mean anything more than the loss of a ball game. The thing for the Corsairs to do is to forget yesterday's defeat and try hard to start another winning streak. When a club has won as many as nine games in a row it is the law of average that a defeat may be suffered any day.

The loss of the opening game with the Dodgers cannot be charged to poor pitching on the part of Fred Fussell. The lone lefthander on the local mound staff hurled splendid ball throughout and on most occasions such pitching as he delivered would have brought victory. Only one run instead of three would have been scored against him if McWeeny's weak tap in the ninth, which should have been easy for Traynor, had not bounded away from the Pirate third-sacker.

TO PITCHER DOUGLAS M'WEENY goes the distinction of having stopped the rushing Buccaneers after they had beaten the best pitchers of the Giants, Phillies and Braves in nine straight games.

"Buzz" is pitching fine ball at present. He has won three

ATHLETES DRILL ON LAND

AMSTERDAM, Holland, July 20.—(AP.)—The American Olympic team, in fine fettle and ready for the historic games at the Amsterdam Stadium, arrived aboard the steamship President Roosevelt at 1:45 o'clock this afternoon.

The President Roosevelt was sighted entering Amsterdam Harbor about 1:30 p. m. and at 10 minutes of the vessel was in the dock amid the cheers of many spectators who crowded the pier to welcome the American athletes.

The American colony here turned out in full force to greet the Olympic team as the President Roosevelt docked.

The official welcome party included Consul General Charles L. Hoover, Mrs. Hoover, Joseph MacCabe, in charge of the Olympic committee's Amsterdam office; G. T. Kirby, past president of the Olympic committee's Amsterdam office, and a group of American students.

WELCOMED BY OFFICIALS

Richard M. Tobin, American minister at The Hague; Commander Robert R. M. Emmett, and Olympic attache Roy Smith boarded the President Roosevelt at Ijmuiden to welcome the Olympic athletes and sailed up stream with them to Amsterdam.

The girl swimmers immediately were taken to the Shell Oil Company's tank and the men to the Marine Natatorium for practice.

CHILLY SAUCE

By CHILLY DOYLE

THE Pirates left the ball game on the bases yesterday. Twelve of the Freebooters were stranded for want of drives of the kind that dotted the field on the previous afternoon. And that condition is a reminder that a collective batting average better than any other entry doesn't insure success.

The Freebooters were due to take a defeat, and this column is not attempting to criticize the club for losing a ball game after winning nine in a row, but aside from the setback there were angles that offer discussion. The weakness of the Pittsburgh batters against McWeeny was the cause of much comment among the spectators. Doug was solved quite often, but when runners were on the bases he was the master of the home boys.

THE absence of long drives at Forbes Field in the past month or two has been apparent. It's been many a long day since a Pirate batter has struck a clean home run in the Oakland orchard, and there has been a scarcity of three-baggers—a long hit that always goes over big.

BUCS OUT TO START NEW WIN STREAK

By CHARLES J. DOYLE.

WELL, folks, our Pirates traveled a long route before they took the bitter portion, and the setback yesterday did not take much of the zip out of the home athletes judging by their sprightliness today as they prepared for the second battle of the series with the pesky Dodgers.

With Max Carey and Joe Harris in their lineup the Flatbush gang bested the Buccos yesterday as the Freebooters endeavored to land a contest which would have run their winning streak to 10. The score was 3 to 0.

The contest was marked by just one honest-to-goodness run, a rather loose play by Pie Traynor in the ninth inning with two down, giving the Dodgers their two extra tallies. Doug McWeeny's weak little tap toward Traynor rolled away from Pie, the fluke hit scoring two runs. McWeeny and Fred Fussell staged a pretty mound duel with little to choose between the two hurlers.

Manager Bush has given the pitching slip for today's fight to Remy Kremer, who has copped two recent games. Opposed to Frenchy will be Jess Petty, Uncle Robbie's robust lefthander. Johnny Gooch is likely to be under the bat for the Robins in the second contest.

The two teams will frolic in a double bill tomorrow afternoon. The twin affair will mark the end of the Pirate's long home stay. Later in the evening the Buccos and Dodgers will leave for New York, another doubleheader being set for

Tunney Refuses To Indorse Gigarets

SPECULATOR, N. Y., July 20. —(INS.)—Because he thought it might have a bad effect on the habits of the young men of the nation, Gene Tunney has refused an offer of $10,000 to indorse a cigaret advertisement. Tunney doesn't smoke, and the cigaret manufacturers didn't want him to say that he did. All they ask for their ten grand was for Gene to say:

"These must be good cigarets, because all my friends smoke them."

You'll have to admit $10,000 is a lot of money for that. Tunney thought so, too, but he thought more of the health of Young America.

He said: "No."

EXPECT NEW RECORDS AS GIANTS, CUBS MEET

CHICAGO, July 20. —(AP.)—A new attendance record for Wrigley Field seems certain if weather conditions are favorable for the doubleheader between the Giants and Cubs tomorrow. The twin bill was necessitated by yesterday's postponement because of rain.

The present attendance record for the park is 47,000, established when the Giants made their last invasion.

ITALIANS BOW TO YANKS

By FREDERIC K. ABBOTT,
International News Service.

ROLAND GARROS STADIUM, PARIS, July 20. —Playing without the services of their ace and team captain, Bill Tilden, the American Davis Cup tennis forces today virtually declared their way into the challenge round with France by taking the first two singles matches in the interzone finals with Italy. Francis T. Hunter, New York, and Johnny Hennessey, Indianapolis, scored the victories for America, each winning his singles match in straight sets.

Hunter won in hollow fashion from Gaslini, of Italy, who was substituted for Stefani, regular singles man, 6-1, 6-1 and 6-0. Hennessey had slightly more difficulty with Baron de Morpurgo, Italian ace, but finally prevailed, 6-4, 7-5 and 6-2.

The victories of Hennessey and Hunter were scored with impressive finality and left no doubt in the minds of those present as to the ultimate outcome. The Americans need only score one victory in the three matches remaining to meet the French in the challenge round for the famous grail of competition.

PARTICIPANTS IN ANNUAL PLAY OVER SCHENLEY PARK COURSE

The Pittsburgh public links golf team yesterday waged its annual battle over the Schenley Park course with an all-star team recruited from the leading players of the golf and country clubs of the district. The All-Stars had a good day, winning 11 matches, drawing two and losing only one. Sam Graham, policeman-golfer, downed H. C. Fownes, II, of Oakmont, 3 and 2, for his team's lone triumph. The All-Stars appear in the back row in the above group, with the public linkers in the front row. Left to right, they are: Back row James Lappan, W. C. Fownes, Jr., George A. Ormiston, John Graham, Richard C. Long, Greer McIlvaine, H. C. Fownes, II, J. A. Fownes, Fred Weppner, J. Scott Burke, J. R. Crawford, A. R. Maxwell, R. L. Babcock and John Jay Burke. Front row—J. T. Lalley, Carl Kauffmann, Robert Graham, H. G. Olsen, Mike Galido, T. M. Barr, M. H. Boshert, Bernie McFarland, Dick Wessel, Kenneth Witherow, Walter Phillips, C. J. Lundeen and Sam Graham. Inset—Joseph Curto, winner of The Sun-Telegraph's junior tournament a week ago, who played on the public links team.

BRAND, ST. CLAIR IN JUNIOR FINAL

RAMSAY, ORCUTT BOW IN DEFEAT

By VERNON A. SWARTSFAGER.

FRED BRAND, JR., of the Hannastown Country Club, and Deny St. Clair, of Kiski, advanced in the final round in the annual junior championship tournament of the Western Pennsylvania Golf Association at the Shannopin Country Club today.

In winning his semi-final match, Brand, the medalist and twice holder of the crown, put out George Orcutt, of Corry, Pa., a "dark horse" whose sensational play in the qualifying test caused him to be ranked with Brand as a title favorite. Orcutt, who is national interscholastic champion, bowed by 3 and 2 only after putting up a strong fight in which he compelled Brand to shoot par and sub par all the way. The cards:

Harry Ramsay, of Shannopin, was St. Clair's victim in the semi-final, and the margin was 4 and 3. St. Clair's brilliant play indicated that he would be able to give Brand a real struggle in the final this afternoon. The St. Clair-Ramsay match cards:

Brand—
Out	6	3	5	4	5	5	3	2	4	3—35
In	4	3	6	4	4	4	4
Orcutt—
Out	5	4	5	4	4	4	3	5	4	—38

In	5	4	6	4	3	5
Ramsay—
Out	5	4	5	5	4	5	3	5	5	—41
In	5	4	5	4	3	6

The summary of semi-final round matches:

CHAMPIONSHIP FLIGHT.

Denny St. Clair defeated Harry Ramsay, 4 and 3.

Fred Brand, Jr., defeated George Orcutt, 3 and 2.

FIRST FLIGHT CONSOLATION.

W. B. Shepard defeated J. R. Royston, Jr., 4 and 2.

W. P. Marks defeated Sidney A. Carson, Jr., 5 and 4.

SECOND FLIGHT.

Xavier Totten defeated Robert Barclay, 2 and 1.

D. E. Mitchell defeated T. S. Jamison, Jr., 3 and 1.

SECOND FLIGHT CONSOLATION.

William Merced defeated George Chubb, 4 and 3.

THIRD FLIGHT.

William Gillespie defeated George M. Hunter, 4 and 2.

H. L. Tomb, Jr., defeated Thomas Tierney, 2 and 1.

THIRD FLIGHT CONSOLATION.

C. McK. Lynch defeated Joseph Totten, 3 and 1.

William Nicklin defeated M. Schwartz, 6 and 4.

ALL-STARS VICTORS

The public links team failed to upset the all-star team in the annual benefit match played over the Schenley Park course yesterday, losing 11 of the 14 matches played, winning but one and holding the all-stars even in two. Sam Graham, policeman-golfer, turned in the lone public links victory, defeating the Oakmont star, H. C. Fownes II, 3 and 2, in a well-played match.

Greer McIlvain and C. J. Lundeen were all even at the completion of their match, as were George Ormiston and W. J. Platt. Francis Lally made a brave bid for a victor, succumbing to Fred Weppner, 1 up. H. G. Olsen held Dr. F. J. Gregg fairly close, losing 2 and 1.

Other matches resulted as follows:

R. C. Long, Stanton Heights, defeated Bob Graham, 4 and 3.

W. C. Fownes, Jr., Oakmont, defeated Mike Galido, 2 up.

A. R. Maxwell, Oakmont, defeated M. H. Boschart, 3 and 2.

Ray Babcock, Oakmont, defeated Bernie McFarland, 3 and 2.

Joe Crawford, Oakmont, defeated Carl Kaufmann, 3 and 2.

J. Scott Burke, Fox Chapel, defeated S. W. Phillips, 3 and 2.

John Lappan, Pittsburgh Field Club, defeated Joe Curto, 3 and 2.

J. A. Fownes, Oakmont, defeated Dick Wessel, 4 and 3.

John Graham, South Hills, defeated T. M. Barr, 6 and 4.

games in the Robins' trip and has allowed only one run in the last 20 innings that he has pitched.

Pittsburgh is back at the .500 mark as the result of the defeat and has fallen two and one-half games below Brooklyn and fifth place. At no time this season have the Bucs been more than three games above the .500 ranking. Their best percentage was reached on May 12, when they had won 12 games and lost nine.

Douglas McWeeny.

BECAUSE a pitcher cannot always throw the ball exactly where he wants to put it for a batter is the cause of many a defeat. That's how "Binger" Bayne, the Cleveland pitcher, who is a resident of this district, came to make possible a home run for Babe Ruth in New York a few days ago.

The incident brought some remarks on the subject of control from Grover Hartley, veteran catcher, who is Roger Peckinpaugh's lieutenant in the handling of the Indians.

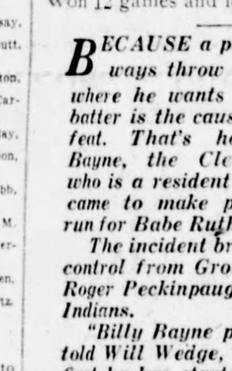
"Billy Rayne pitched a pretty good game," Hartley told Will Wedge, "considering the fact that it was the first he has started this year and that he tired as he went along. Also, considering that his control was not as good as it will be after he has been in there a few more times.

"FAULTY control gave the Babe that homer. It happened like this: Bill has a great curve ball. He used to worry the Babe with it when he was with the Browns and he worried him with it when he struck him out in the first inning and again in the seventh. In the third he set out to nail him with it and he wanted to pave the way for it. So he figured he'd throw him his side-arm spinner, keeping it about six inches outside the plate where the Babe could see it but not hit at it.

"That was simply to plant the spinner in the Babe's mind and make him look for it again so that he would be crossed up by the curve. It was a fine plan and it probably would have worked out—but Bill got the spinner right over the plate and the Babe smacked it into the bleachers."

"CONTROL," Hartley went on, "comes partly with constant practice and partly with confidence. A pitcher by throwing and throwing and throwing can get the range of the plate in practice. Then he must make himself believe he can keep the range when he's in a tight spot in a ball game.

"Control and confidence make a pitcher. It isn't so much what a pitcher has as what he can do with it. Take young Henry Johnson of the Yankees, for instance. He has all the stuff any pitcher ever needed to be a consistent winner, but as yet he lacks confidence in himself. When he gets it he is going to be a whale of a pitcher, mark my word. Until he gets it, he is going to have plenty of trouble from time to time. Mark that, too."



Grover Hartley.

JOE CRONIN, former Pirate, recently bought from Kansas City by Washington, made his reappearance in the big show yesterday when he played shortstop for the Senators in both games of the double-header against Detroit, and got off to a good start. He went hitless in one of the games but made two singles in the other, and in the field h accepted six chances during the afternoon without a slip. Joe is batting in the sixth notch. With Manager Harris playing at his side, Cronin will get the benefit of all the steadying influence and coaching that the Washington leader can give him on plays around the midway. Joe's many friends in Pittsburgh and vicinity are pulling hard for the deserving youngster to make good on his new chance in the majors.

THOUGH Frisco Grande is said to have made impressive showings in some parts of the country, Corporal Izzy Schwartz looks like a winner over the Filipino challenger in tonight's bout for the flyweight championship.

If he fails to win, Schwartz will mar a clean slate for champions in 1928, as up to date every titleholder who has entered the ring in defense of his title this year has come out a victor.

STRANGLER LEWIS, world mat champion, has brought up again the old question as to which would stand the best chance of winning if a match were arranged between a heavyweight fistic titleholder and a king-pin wrestler, each to play his own game.

Lewis again declares that the wrestler would have all the better of it and expresses the opinion that he could beat Gene Tunney in two minutes.

Strangler Lewis.

LEWIS, by the way, is talking "retirement" again. He soon will be on his way to Europe for a tour of three months and some easy money in a series of matches and exhibitions, and says that after defending his title for one more year he will quit the game. It is said that the Strangler is easily a millionaire, and that a busy year ahead will add another quarter of a million to his fortune. The fact that an individual could make so much money out of the wrestling game attests that there still are a number of places on the map producing evidence aplenty that Barnum underestimated the birthrate.

PIRATES

Sunday at Ebbets Field. These games will inaugurate the second eastern invasion of the Pirates.

Fussell and McWeeny were pretty as they fought it out yesterday, the Dodgers making an important tally in the fourth when Rube Bressler tripled over L. Waner's head as the second gun of the round. Del Bissonette, home-run king of the Robins, was twice fanned by Fussell, but in this instance he doubled over P. Waner's head to score the run.

The Buccos just missed winning the game in the first round when P. Waner's hard wallop with runners on second and first and none out was gobbled up by Flowers and turned into a double play. From the first to the ninth, Doug had the "woggle bug" on the Pirates. In the last inning the Pirates kicked over the traces, but McWeeny tightened with runners on third and first and one out, nobody getting across the plate.

TENNIS

from the team on the eve of the matches on charges of having violated the player-writer rule at Wimbledon. Tilden sat on the sidelines today and encouraged his former mates at all times.

The Americans, particularly Hennessey, seemed to have the sympathy of the gallery, which was mostly French. They cheered Johnny to a deafening echo for his sensational play in the second set, where he refused to concede defeat after the Baron had run the games to 5-5 and went on to outplay his opponent in the final four games in a fashion most impressive. The gallery openly resented a decision against Hennessey in the eighth game and, two games earlier, murmured its discontent when the umpire called a foot fault against the American on the game point.

This decision seemed to disconcert Hennessey, but, with the prospect of extra sets before him, he rallied grandly and had the Baron badly on the run during the latter part of the set. In fact, so weary was De Morpurgo from the pace that he had little with which to combat Hennessey's withering drives and agile footwork in the final set.

Tilden rushed on the court when it was all over to warmly grasp Hennessey's hand, while real American cheers went up from the stands as the winning point slid off Johnny's inspired racquet.

HENNESSEY HAPPY

It was the greatest triumph in the rather vivid career of this Indianapolis youth and he took it with his customary grace, smiling happily and waving his hand to the shouts of congratulation. It is doubtful if even he expected to win from the noted Italian in straight sets. The canniest of dopesters hardly saw Hennessey winning without the loss of a set, although many granted him a good chance of victory. The manner in which it was gained proved a genuine surprise and revived American hopes of making a real showing against the French.

It was a case of write your own ticket against the Americans' chance of going on to the challenge round after today's matches. One old-timer in the press box offered odds of 1 to 5, saying:

"The doubles match tomorrow is as good as won."

The stroke analysis of the Hennessey-De Morpurgo match showed conclusively the American's superiority, both on attack and in steadiness. He outscored the Baron in points, 122 to 107, and in placements, 33 to 25. Hennessey had four double faults, 39 nets and as many outs. The Baron's double faulted three times, had 50 outs and 36 nets.

Hunter scored 21 placements, had two double faults, one service ace, 17 nets and 11 outs.

Gaslini had 11 placements, six double faults, no service aces, 19 nets and 39 outs.

WHAT'S ON THE AIR

COMPOSITIONS by George Friedrich Handel will be featured by Godfrey Ludlow, violinist, and Mme. Lolita Cabrera Gainsborg, pianist, in their NBC recital, which will be heard over KDKA at 8 o'clock tonight.

At the same hour the Cities Service concert, another NBC presentation, will be offered over WCAE. Glazounow's "Bacchanal" and Lehar's "Passion Rose" will be featured.

Jazz tunes, old-time songs, modern operetta excerpts and orchestral numbers will be included in the varied musical program to be presented during the Wrigley review over NBC stations, including KDKA, at 9 o'clock. A vocal trio a traditional air, and "Better Get will render "The Gypsy's Warning," Out of My Way," by Robison.

The Folles Bergere will be the scene of this week's an "Evening in Paris" presentation. There will be jazz numbers and popular French tunes of the day among the musical numbers. This program will be heard over WCAE at 9 o'clock.

Victor Herbert's "Chinese Serenade" will be sung by Olive Palmer as a soprano solo during the Palmolive hour, an NBC feature scheduled for 10 o'clock. WCAE will be in the hookup. Paul Oliver, tenor, will sing "I'll Sing Thee Songs of Araby." There will be duet numbers, vocal music by a trio and instrumental selections also.

The track athletes went to the stadium practice grounds and to the gymnasium of the Amsterdam police.

Arrangements also were made to give the various crews a practice run on the Sloten Canal later in the day.

All Amsterdam will have a chance to make the acquaintance of the American athletes on the evening of July 26, when a reception is scheduled aboard the President Roosevelt.

"We don't care whether 10,000 people crowd the ship," Gustavus T. Kirby, president of the American Olympic Committee, said. "We do want the Amsterdamers to know our athletes and have our hosts know how much we appreciate being here."

The athletes of the other nations will be entertained aboard on July 28, while representatives of the Dutch government and Olympic officials will be invited to a banquet at the Royal Boat Club on August 7.

The last part of the President Roosevelt's voyage was an unusual experience for most of the Olympic athletes. The ship laid off at Ijmuiden from dawn until 10 o'clock this morning and the athletes, awake early, lined the decks and gazed at the long low horizon of dunes which form the Dutch coast line. Then as the ship approached shore there were exclamations of astonishment as Holland revealed itself stretched beyond and below sea level.

New shaving cream gives greater lubrication —ends tenderface

—its healing, double-dense lather soothes skin— gives quicker, smoother shaves

MEN! Now you can say goodbye to all shaving discomfort. For here is a marvelous new kind of shaving cream with double-dense lather that thoroughly lubricates the skin—soothes and heals—and gives you the quickest, smoothest shave you've ever known.

Most shaving irritation is caused by friction—the rough scraping of razor over skin. The only way you can end this friction is by complete lubrication.

Ordinary lather cannot lubricate the skin properly. It is too light and frothy.

Lifebuoy Shaving Cream lather, however, with its double-dense consistency, crowds itself right into the pores and hugs the face so closely that a thoroughly lubricated shaving surface is formed.

No tugging, no pulling, no friction—because there are no unlubricated spots. You get a wonderfully clean shave—yet your razor scarcely seems to touch you.

But that isn't all. Lifebuoy Shaving Cream contains the same antiseptic ingredient as Lifebuoy Health Soap. Keeps skin clear, smooth, healthy—helps protect against infection.

It's a shaving cream and face lotion in one. Get the big red tube today.

Can Jealous Petty Bosses Keep Brilliant Men Down?

By B. C. FORBES

THERE is no money in manufacturing excuses. Yet it is among the most popular of industries. Nearly all of us indulge in it more or less.

Instead of shouldering responsibility, how tempting it often is to slide from under and cast the blame on somebody else. If employes knew how bosses detest such tactics, they would rather stand up and take their legitimate punishment.

THESE observations are prompted by a letter which expresses the state of mind of far too many employes. After saying complimentary things about this column, the letter-writer says:

"There is one subject I would like to see in print in view of the statement so often made that there are more big jobs than men to fill them. Has it ever occurred to you that there are many big men in the making whose careers are killed by some overlord superior who carries on a ruthless warfare to crush the ambition that one may possess?

"Advantage is taken of their position and they bear down with everything at their command until eventually the other fellow gives up in despair. I do not mean by this that it is done by the real higher-ups, but by those in-between fellows who, perhaps, see in one a very capable man who is too able and efficient for their own comfort.

"Is such a man much different from our gangster who uses 'the rod' when competition sets in? The one kills the body, the other the soul."

FIRST let us admit that there are many pin-headed, petty bosses who delight in browbeating those under them and who are jealous of any particularly bright subordinate giving promise of rising. Jealousy, indeed, is not confined to petty bosses or to any other one class, but is rank in many organizations from almost the top to the bottom. Let us admit, too, that it is far from easy for a capable worker to overcome the obstructions of a jealous or tyrannical superior.

BUT the man who cannot in time solve such a problem in one way or another is entitled to regard himself as a "big man in the making."

If he were really as big as he thinks he is, if he were as supremely talented as he imagines, either his work would sooner or later make an impression on some higher-up, or, if this did not happen, the repressed one would move, confident that, although he might have to start rather low down, his wonderful ability and industry would compel recognition and advancement.

HE isn't a truly big man who can't solve problems beyond the ability of ordinary mediocrities to solve.

"I know that I am a $10,000 a year man, but I haven't been able to find the right opening. Can you put me in touch with a $10,000 a year job. I know I can make good."

That is the plaint of many letters which come to the writer. They are near relatives of the letter quoted in this column today.

The answer, of course, is that he is not a $10,000 a year man who falls down in the very first requisite of a $10,000 a year man, namely, the ability to land a $10,000 a year job, to sell himself at his desired figure.

JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER once impressed upon me that the main trouble with a great many young men today is that they want other people to do things for them.

"They want to be handed a share of the profits. The way to get a share of the profits is to save money, buy as much stock as possible in the business and then get a share in the profits that way," was his pronouncement.

He emphasized the vital importance of self-reliance, of having the courage to strike out to demonstrate your worth.

SELF-PITY blights millions of careers. Ambition that can be killed by an unfair superior is not much of an ambition. A chronic whiner rarely is a winner. There is no healthy nourishment in nursing a grouch year after year. A man must either learn to get on with his superiors and others—or get out. I have scant patience with the conceited fellow who is sure he is a world-beater, yet shivers at the thought of stepping out and taking a chance elsewhere. When he KNOWS he is so good, why be content forever to remain stultified?

IF you have the right kind of ambition, nobody on earh can kill it but yourself.

SUGAR MARKET.

NEW YORK, July 20.—The raw sugar market was firmer today, with more buying interest at the 4.06c level for spots, duty paid. Offerings were light and only at higher prices, with no sales reported.

The raw sugar futures market opened unchanged to 4 points higher and at mid-day showed net advances of 4 points on all positions. The steadier tone of the spot market and firmness abroad, where prices were higher as a result of unfavorable weather for the beet crop, led to increased covering and some new outside buying.

The refined market was unchanged at 5.75c to 5.80c for fine granulated. Withdrawals were again of liberal proportions and some increase was noted in new buying.

Money Market.

LONDON, July 20.—Bar silver, 27 1-16d per ounce. Money, 2½ per cent. Discount rates, short bills, 4 per cent; three months, 4 1-16 per cent.

Metal Market.

LONDON, July 20.—Standard copper, spot, £62 17s 6d; future, £63 5s; electrolytic, spot, £68 15s; future, £69 5s. Tin, spot, £216 17s 6d; future, £215 ... Lead, spot, £20 15s; future, £21 5s. Zinc, spot, £24 12s 6d; future, £24 17s 6d.

STOCKS RALLY AFTER SHARP DECLINE

NEW YORK, July 20.—(AP.)—The stock market displayed a complete reversal of form today, selling off sharply at the opening and then rallying briskly. Early heaviness undoubtedly was due to speculative disappointment over the relatively small decrease of $48,000,000 in brokers' loans, but the marking down of the call money renewal rate to 5 per cent, the lowest since May 7, revived bullish enthusiasm.

Wall street apparently was pleased at the sharp decrease in federal reserve rediscounts in the New York district. Importation of $1,000,000 in Canadian gold was more than offset by the withdrawal of $14,000,000 in earmarked gold for shipment to France. Fears of a stiffening of money rates later in the month still persist, and have a restrictive effect on trading.

Mercantile and mail order issues again attracted special buying on reports of large current business. McCrory Stores common and the B stock and Montgomery Ward all moved into new high ground. Steel shares reflected the optimistic trade predictions of better business in the last half of the year, gains of 1 to nearly 2 points being recorded by U. S. Steel common, Bethlehem, Republic, Vanadium, Gulf States and Colorado fuel.

Eastman Kodak ran up more than 7 points and Allied Chemical, Wright Aeronautical, Coca Cola, Davison Chemical, American International and American Linseed sold 2 to 3½ points higher. Case Threshing, Midland Steel Products preferred, Kelvinator and American Express were under pressure.

ROUND TABLE of BUSINESS

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

THE withdrawal of the United Mine Workers of America from their stand on the Jacksonville wage scale will mean little so far as the largest operators here are concerned, but there are many smallr producers who have been shut down during the entire strike, who now will have a chance to dig coal. There are also about 200 small mines which have been working on the old scale under special arrangements with the union. These will be given the advantage of any reduction which may be made.

THE greatest stimulus in coal mining to be expected from a possible agreement will be in the states where union influence has never been broken.

Illinois, Indiana and parts of Ohio have not been able to fight the strike except in the cases of a few properties. A resumption of production will take place in these fields if the district policy committees and the operators can come to terms.

The union appears to have had enough of the strike so that a settlement is very likely.

COAL prices in this district recently have averaged about $1.75 a ton compared with about $2.25 a ton before the strike started on April 1, 1927. Many in the coal trade were hopeful that prices would advance from these ruinous levels to the latter part of the summer. If the mine strike is brought to an end, such a large number of operators will again start mining coal, that improvement in prices will be deferred for a long time.

THE big operators, such as Pittsburgh Coal Company and Pittsburgh Terminal Coal Corporation, have indisputably beaten the union.

They will have little difficulty in keeping to their purpose of not recognizing the United Mine Workers of America. There are other operators, however, who will continue to run union workings. The mine map of this district will be a strange checkerboard of union and open shop mines placed side by side.

THE union will continue to be a factor in coal mining in Western Pennsylvania, but it has lost its former dominant position. The union may have difficulty in finding work for the thousands of loyal miners who stood with their leaders in the long fight for the Jacksonville scale. Most of the families that faced starvation and the loss of their homes, now see the jobs of their bread winners in the hands of strikebreakers. A large number of miners have drifed into other industries, but there are still many who will find no relief, even in a settlement of the strike.

AN official of the A. M. Byers Company states that there is no foundation for the rumors that the company is planning to purchase a Canadian organization. No decision has been reached on the purchase of the Warren plant. At present, this property is held under a lease with an option to purchase. Production of Aston iron is being carried on at this point. The new machinery which will place production on a larger scale will be ready for operation by August 15.

NET income of A. M. Byers Company in the quarter ended June 30, was far greater than in either the preceding quarter or the corresponding quarter of 1927. Net of $484,232 was equivalent to $1.89 a share on the common stock after deducting dividends on the preferred stock.

Earnings in the preceding quarters of the fiscal year, which began on October 1, were less than in the corresponding periods of the previous year, but the increase in the quarter just ended brought the net income for the nine months up to $1,078,654, which was greater than a year ago. This was equivalent to $3.80 a share on the common stock.

The offering of rights to stockholders to subscribe for the 125,000 additional shares of common stock, which were recently authorized by stockholders, will not take place until after the presidential election.

THE Bell Telephone Company of Pennsylvania is making expenditures for improvements in Pittsburgh this year which will cost a total of $5,818,000. During the first six months of this year actual expenditures amounted to $2,248,000. This expenditure covers inside and outside plant additions in Franklin, Cedar, Schenley, Mayflower, Grant and Hiland exchange districts.

The additions also include part of the work on the new central office building in Wilkinsburg, which will be completed next year.

Merely Margy, An Awfully Sweet Girl -:- Story by Lloyd Mayer -:- By John Held, Jr.

I'M OFF WOMEN FOR LIFE! YES SIR OFF 'EM FOR LIFE!
I SUPPOSE SOME HEARTLESS FLIRT HAS SHATTERED YOUR IDEALS AND MADE A MOCKERY OF YOUR TRUE LOVE AFTER YOU TRUSTED HER ?
YEA! READ THIS NOTE - READ IT, GO ON!
THERE'S NOTHING IN THIS TO GET UPSET ABOUT!
YOU'RE TOO YOUNG TO UNDERSTAND MY GRIEF!

TOMORROW WILL TELL!

"My dear, I'm all-of-a-BIB-and-TUCKer, no less, because I'm ACtually FRAYED down to my WARP and WOOF about this sailor BROTHer of ARab's, my dear, because the young pipsqueak is all hot and BOTHered about some strange SHIMmy-fluffer who's deSTROYED his FAITH in WOMen, my dear, and at this point he's waxing AWfully CYNical, sort of, and says he's off GIRLS for LIFE—can you BEAR it, my dear? I mean you've no iDEA how it WORries me because he's the kind of PASsionate type of a youth who I bet you ANYthing would practicably deSTROY himself vaguely if he was disapPOINTED in LOVE on account of getting in the TOILS of some unSCRUP'lous GIRL, do you know what I mean? Well, ANYways, my dear, he wouldn't say ANYthing aBOUT what was the MATter at this point, but just told me to READ this odd LETter, which was PERfectly inOCuous, my dear, so far as I could see, but he anNOYED me THORoughly because he said I was too YOUNG to underSTAND—can you BEAR it? HONestly, my dear, have you EVer heard of ANYthing so WILD? Well, ANYways, I can't WAIT to get it OUT of him what it's all aBOUT so I inVEIGled him into an INtimate TRYST toMORrow, my dear, at which I trust ALL will be diVULGED because I mean I promised FAITHfully I wouldn't BREATHE a WORD of it to ANYbody if he'd conFIDE it to me so I mean I'm practicably CERtain he WILL, my dear, so I'm ABslutely CONfident I'll be able to give you the GORy parTICulars about two SEConds after I've SEEN him again, my dear—I mean I ACtually AM!"

THE NEBBS — My Error

GOOD MORNING, MRS SNOOKS,— ARE YOU HERE FOR AN INDEFINITE STAY?
GOOD MAWNING, THAT'S A MATTAWN I HAWVENT GIVEN MUCH CONSIDERATION YET—OTHER THAN MY SOCIAL OBLIGATIONS, MY TIME IS MY OWN. GOOD MAWNING
WHO IS THAT RUDE UNCULTURED PERSON THAT PRESUMES SHE OUGHT TO INTRODUCE HERSELF TO ME?
WHY, DONT YOU KNOW HER?—I'M SURPRISED—AND YOU IN SOCIETY'S EYE! WHY THAT'S TEDDY BAER, THE FAMOUS SOCIETY REPORTER FOR THE EVENING SUNSHINE—SHE'S MOTORING THROUGH GETTING SOCIETY ITEMS
I DONT KNOW, WHY YOU DONT KNOW THAT MISS BAER IS HERE IN THE HOTEL— DO YOU THINK A PERSON COMES HERE TO HIBERNATE? IT LOOKS LIKE IT.
WHY MRS. SNOOKS, I TOOK IT FOR GRANTED YOU KNEW MISS BAER AND TOO, I KNOW THAT A PERSON OF YOUR SOCIAL PROMINENCE DOESNT NEED PUBLICITY
I DONT CARE FOR PUBLICITY BUT IT WOULD BE A FEATHER IN THE GIRL'S BONNET— WHICH WAY, DID SHE GO?
THERE'S ONE TIME IN HER LIFE SHE HAD A CHANCE TO BREAK INTO PRINT WITHOUT GETTING RUN OVER, SITTING ON A FLAG POLE OR ENTERING A MARATHON DANCE AND SHE MUFFED IT!

SYNOPSIS — After reading an ad in the Southern Reporter and Devil's Dyke Free Press which asks the gentleman who found a lady's glove at the Dragoons' Ball to be at the Zoological Gardens Sunday, Sir Harry Doncaster twirls his tawny mustache.

When Sir Harry Doncaster returned to his room he felt again in the breast pocket of his coat, remembering that it would not be well for its contents to come under the notice of his servants in the morning. His earlier suspicions were confirmed. The glove was gone!

End of the Coal Strike

Both Operators and Miners Have Learned Something.

The bituminous coal strike practically has ended. The Jacksonville wage agreement has been definitely abandoned.

It is true that district organizations of the United Mine Workers are privileged to negotiate separate wage scales with the operators of their districts, and there may be disagreements here and there. But the strike in a general sense is finished with the scrapping of the Jacksonville pact by the workers, who have suffered inestimable loss because it previously had been cast aside by operators who refused to stand by their pledged word. The operators also have lost heavily.

The dishonor of this strike rests on those operators who repudiated their agreement. Some mining companies closed their workings, waited for the expiration of the term of the bargain, then reopened on a nonunion basis. This, in a way, was "beating the devil around the bush," but it was not open violation of a legal and moral obligation.

This strike was one of the greatest blows to industry the Pittsburgh district ever has suffered, and it might have been avoided had there not been a determination on the part of some operators to "teach the miners a lesson." They claimed they could not operate profitably under the Jacksonville pact inasmuch as they had to compete with Southern nonunion fields. That had been a factor when they signed the agreement, so the miners are scarcely to be blamed if they doubted the statements made. Perhaps it would be more polite to state they were skeptical. Anyway, they, too, knew the operators were itching for a chance to teach them their lesson. It had been in the air for some time.

And now it is practically all over. The miners have been taught their lesson. The operators have learned something, too, through suffering and financial losses, but some of them have not yet learned that men are men and not chattels to be driven about at the crack of a master's whip. Some of them have not yet learned that co-operation and laying all the cards on the table serve to keep peace in industry. Some of them still believe that their business is THEIR business alone and that the workman has no interest in it whatever—except to obey orders.

If operators of this unprogressive and narrow-minded class dominate the industry in future, we may see the Federal government step in, as was the case with the railroads.

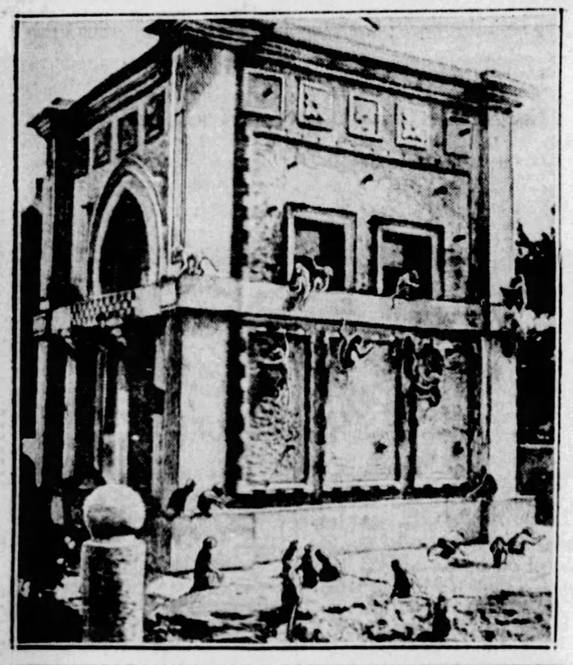
The recent Senatorial investigation may bear real fruit in legislation that safeguards both worker and operator.

But the present situation calls for tolerance, patience and fair treatment. The operators have the upper hand now and can do much to rehabilitate themselves in the public regard by adopting a liberal policy.

Everyone in Pittsburgh will hope that the action of the [illegible]s will end the depression that has gripped the bituminous [illegible] more than a year.

Sunlight for Monkeys

They Need It, So Do Children.



A MONKEY "TEMPLE" WITH ARTIFICIAL SUNLIGHT IN THE BRISTOL ZOO.

The Clifton Zoo of Bristol, England, possesses many valuable monkeys. These tender animals are used to a tropical climate and a GREAT DEAL of sunlight. Their dark complexions and thick coats of hair are nicely balanced to offset powerful effects of the sun's actinic rays, health giving.

In Great Britain's severe climate, much fog, coal dust and comparatively little sunshine, monkeys are not happy. So this "Monkey Temple" was built. Inside it are gigantic lamps, with mercury in the bulbs, producing artificial sunlight with actinic rays as healthful as those the sun itself produces.

When the monkeys feel homesick and long for the tropical sun they enter the temple, bask in the actinic rays and regain their vigor.

There is another monkey temple in India, at Benares, where those benighted heathens look upon the monkeys as sacred, allow them to do whatever they please.

The two temples offer an interesting contrast. The one in India represents the lowest depths of superstition, and the one in Great Britain represents height of a certain kind of benevolence.

As the world becomes really civilized the gentlemen in India will stop worshipping monkeys, cease to hold them sacred and facilitate their process of dying out.

And the gentlemen in Great Britain will be so interested in providing artificial sunlight for sickly children, in the slums of their great cities, that they won't have much time to bother about monkeys.

He Can't, You Can

But Many of Us That Might, Don't.

The mechanical man, "Televox," designed by R. J. Wensley for the Westinghouse Electric Company, talks in a deep bass voice and actually sends out reliable information. He can be made to talk in any language. But he can't THINK in any language. And thinking is the process that all the scientists in the world cannot explain.

We humans, of the old fashioned kind CAN think, and some of us DO.

More of us DON'T, and that's our trouble.

LAND?

Garrett P. Serviss Says:

The Cicada and His Jazz

AMONG man's contemporaries in earthly life the "seventeen-year locust" may hold the palm for sphinx-like mysteriousness. One of the 17 known hordes of this strange creature is now singing and fiddle-scraping away its brief term of freedom in the trees after so many years of dark, underground existence. The special haunt of this particular tribe is along the eastern side of the Alleghenies. The discarded shells (pupas) inhabited by the insects before crawling from the ground may be seen left, fastened by spiny legs to the bark of tree-trunks. Thin, semi-transparent, split along the back, dried by sun, and whistling in the wind, these lifeless shells retain with startling exactness the form of the living insect which has escaped from their imprisonment.

The scientific name of these spectral insects is cicada. For no reason known to man there are 17 "broods" of cicadas inhabiting the United States, each brood having its own year of emergence from its 16-year continuous sojourn under ground, where during all that time its members blindly feed on the roots of trees and plants. Then, when their fated year comes round in its regular succession, the whole brood makes for the world of the sunshine. Every insect climbing a tree-trunk dressed in its translucent shroud, fixes its horny claws in the bark, and waits for the confining garment to split in the drying air and set it free. As it emerges the folded wings that have grown in its prison—a promise of the angelic weeks to come—expand, become rigid and begin to reflect the sunbeams in prismatic hues.

The creature has reached its heaven, but alas! it is not the eternal paradise dreamed by man. Only a month, or at the most five or six weeks, of the idyllic existence is allotted; then, their eggs being laid for the next generation to begin its long subterranean half-life-half-death, they depart into the bosom of invisible nature.

It is a curious fact that one particular brood comes out of the ground each succeeding year. Consequently, after the lapse of 17 years the same brood which has emerged this year will come out again as another generation, the children of those that have been entertaining us with their jazz in the trees in the early summer of 1928.

Each brood has its favorite geographical range. That of next year, for instance, inhabits the prairie states, centering in Iowa. Entomologists have numbered the broods with Roman numerals. That of last year was Brood I., this year we have Brood II., next year will emerge Brood III.

But there is another horde of these insects, inhabiting the lower Mississippi states, known as the 13-year locusts, their cycle of reappearance being 13 years instead of 17.

Everybody who has lived in the country for any length of time has most likely heard the shrill, piercing sound of the cicada's—harp, shall I call it? No doubt it is as sweet as Apollo's harp to the insects themselves, for, in accordance with the fashion among insect tribes, their music is always a love song; so that the louder the fracas swells in the echoing trees the higher, we may feel sure, burns the flame of rapture and the thicker fly the arrows of the cicadian Cupid hidden among the green branches.

One comforting fact for farmers brought out by entomological science is that the cicada crams itself with food to such a degree while it is dwelling underground, in expectation of its brief day of glory, that it accumulates a reserve of nourishment sufficient to supply most of its wants while it lives in the open air.

Golf at 62

R. C. ROSENBERG, a retired real estate man of San Francisco, celebrated his sixty-second birthday by playing 152 holes of golf. That means about eight and a half rounds of 18 holes each. He had to walk 42 miles to make it. Just before this, on the same links, was a juvenile tournament.

That seems to be the beauty of golf—few are too young and none too old to play the game. Mr. Rosenberg's example may well be followed by other men of 62—to their advantage—only one round will be plenty for mo[illegible] of the 60-year-old boys.

Spare Time

ARE you waiting till you lose your job before you try out some plans you have for adding to your income?

Riding along so comfortably at present, you think, what's the use of worrying.

You are making as much effort as you care to expend and therefore you refuse to make practical use of your leisure.

Most folk know how to work well and industriously when it is time for the daily grind.

But it takes real gray matter to realize that the spare time, the leisure hours are the most valuable part of the day.

When a man or woman is working at routine, in the thick of a day's rush there is no time to develop new ideas.

But after the day's work, why don't you use that rest period to put over the thing that you profess to believe in as a money-maker?

Your idea may be popular today and by the time you get ready to put it out the public may be out of the notion.

Other and newer interests may be before the public and you did not strike while the iron was hot. Get the market while it is valuable.

It may not last long.

Life's Peaks

ON mountain crests, white with eternal snows,
Blows breezes rarer than the valley knows,
Swift winds of Heaven that with their touch impart
Their own winged lightness to the climber's heart.
So, too, upon life's lofty mountain peaks
The wind of love unto the spirit speaks.
More pure than valley winds and fresher far,
It bears a message from the whitest star.
It breathes a whisper as of things divine,
It stirs the pulses like a vintage wine.

Tales that are Told

Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By WILL ROGERS

SOME fellows are so agreeable that they are willing to compromise almost anything. They ain't real sore at anybody, and they don't carry no grudges.

Well, there was a guy brought up in court for beating up a friend of his with a piece of lead pipe when they were both celebrating.

"Are you ready for trial?" says the judge.

"Why, it's all right with me, judge. Go ahead and have a trial if you want to."

"Where's your lawyer?"

"I don't know, judge. I didn't know I had one, but if you think I have, why all right. I reckon he's out getting him a drink."

"Do you want the court to appoint a lawyer for you?"

"Why, don't trouble yourself at all, judge. Do just as you like. I don't want for anything, least of all a lawyer, but if you want to do a little appointing, just by way of amusing yourself over the week-end, why it's all right with me."

"Well, what are you going to do about this case? You're charged with a felony, you know."

"A felony, is it? No, I didn't know that, judge. But it's all right with me. And what'll we do? Why, if it's all right with you, judge, I reckon we better drop the whole thing and let you get along with your work."

Silence Pays Sometimes

AT a certain railway station an exceedingly youthful-looking lad sauntered up to the booking-office smoking a cigaret.

"Half return to Herne Hill," he demanded and planked down a coin.

"Smoking at your age," ventured the booking-agent, noticing the boy's cigaret.

"Who do you think's a kid?" returned the boy impudently. "I'm 16!"

"Oh, are you?" replied the clerk promptly. "Then I'll trouble you for full fare, young man."

Quite Comfortable

"MARY," said the mistress of the house, "I am going to lie down on the settee for half an hour. Call me at 5 o'clock if I happen to drop off, will you?"

Some time later she woke up suddenly as the clock began striking. It was six.

"Mary," she cried, "why didn't you call me?"

Mary was very indignant.

"But, ma'am," she began, "you distinctly asked me to call you if you dropped off, and when I looked in at five you hadn't dropped off at all. You were lying in the same place, fast asleep!"

It Could Be Made So

"NOW children, call out some long words to me."

"Peculiarities."

"Good—another."

"Idiosyncracies."

"Yes—another."

"Rubber."

"That is not long."

"No, but you can stretch it."

NEW YORK, July 20.—Thoughts while strolling: The Negro taxi driver with a gold ring in his ear. Oscar Shaw's teeth. Elisabeth Marbury, who doesn't like it spelled with a "z." And who is past 70 and smokes exactly five cigarets a day. Well, well!

The red-haired mother with three red-haired daughters who are all on the stage. Chic Sale in from Scarsdale loafing in front of a drug store. Just a country boy. Sign: "Day and night lipsticks." Jay E. House, a Topeka (Kan.) boy who made good in the city.

James Montgomery Flagg's eyelashes. Pirie MacDonald, the photographer, who charges $100 a sitting—photos extra. Why are all the beautiful girls hanging on the arms of ugly men? Three squads of motorcycle cops. If it is another flier I won't look.

Girls who try to appear languid like Greta Garbo. And look like—well, you cannot blame gals for trying. Could you go for that suit?—green with a pronounced pink stripe. Still, I suppose some people look at all of us and hide a grin.

Magnificent establishments featuring "table luxuries" with clerks in frock coats. Mrs. E. M. Statler, widow of the hotel man. Cafes that try to appeal to the "haut monde" with menus in French only. Those expansive furniture store windows showing completely equipped rooms.

Ray Long Rolls-Roycing it. I remember—but no matter. Boys wearing snow-white Alpine hats with dinner clothes. Actors resting on their dignity until the fall stampede. The iron-studded doors where knowing raps bring an alcoholic saturnalia of hospitality. And headaches.

Caliope auto horns. Paris styles in New York windows before the tourists get home. What sort of a racket is that?—a man standing on a high window ledge blowing a bugle. Probably his wife locked him out. Anything can happen on this mad little isle.

A handsome Broadway leading man is the owner of 46 canaries, all named for stage celebrities, and he can call each by name. Canary calling at its zenith.

Handsome leading men are often a disappointment in ordinary light. There is one who resembles George Ade's hero who lost the settings out of his face. One of the most famous had a protruding myoptic eye. Two are completely outfitted with store teeth. And still another in a low collar looks as though he had tried to swallow a doorknob and it stuck in his gullet.

The salary of a handsome leading man, I am told, averages $750 a week. That is if single. If married his drawing power is not so hot and he must be content with something measly like $600.

It cost New York $16,000 to clean up the last muss of confetti throwers who filled lower Broadway with torn-up directories and such in honor of the latest flyers. More than 1,500 tons of scrap paper were hurled out the skyscraper windows. A big city's rather pathetic idea of high jinks.

The Love Cure

By DR. FRANK CRANE

A little old lady by the name of Miss Wilkins, a school teacher, was admitted to the county hospital.

She had come in that morning and three nurses and the doctor were in her room talking over her case. The doctor was an old man of German descent, with bushy whiskers and a gruff voice.

While they were talking there was a knock at the door of the room. The head nurse opened it and there stood a little ragamuffin of a boy some 16 years of age who was barefooted, with tousled hair, and who presented a general appearance of a tatterdemalion.

"What do you want?" inquired the nurse.

"I came to see Miss Wilkins."

"Well, you can't see her now. She has just come in. She is sick. Any message?"

The boy bashfully said, "No, I just wanted to see her a few minutes. I wanted to love her."

"Well, come back after a while—tomorrow—and perhaps you can see her."

The doctor had overheard the conversation and said, "Hold on a minute. Let the boy come in."

The boy was ushered in and the doctor asked him what he wanted. He said, "I don't want nuthin' but just to love her a few minutes. I ain't got nuthin' to give her, but I love her better than anybody else and I didn't know but what that would do some good."

The doctor turned and dismissed the nurses. Then he said to the boy, "Go ahead."

The boy fell down on his knees by the bed and took hold of Miss Wilkins' hand and bowed his head upon it. The doctor quietly stepped out of the room.

In about a half hour the boy came out.

"What did you do?" said the doctor.

"I didn't do nuthin' 'cep' just loved her. She is the best woman I ever knowed. She is the first person that ever treated me like a human being, so I wanted to do somethin' for her."

"All right," said the doctor. "You can come back about this time tomorrow, if you want to."

The boy went away and the nurses returned. They looked inquiringly at the doctor. He pulled at his whiskers awhile and then said, "I have been trying an interesting experiment. I guess you might call it the love cure. We doctors of any sense know we can't cure people. We can produce some effects with drugs or surgery, but what makes people get well is still a mystery. I suppose it is nature or God or something which we don't know anything about. So you do your part in nursing and care and it all may help some. But this love business is the strongest force in the world. It is the force that brings life in the first place and I suppose that it heals life. When you make a gash in a tree the tree makes a scar for it and covers it up. When anything goes wrong with us nature goes to work in her own way to try to remedy the disease. Something cures people. Some say it is faith, some say it is God. Some say it is some fake medicine and some say it is scientific knowledge, but none of us know. This boy has got hold of the greatest thing in the world, which is love. We will see what it can do."

They found Miss Wilkins indisputably brighter and free from pain. Somehow she got well.

"Whether it was the love that made her get well or not, I do not know," said the doctor. "But I know we are all trying to find out what the healing force in nature is. Maybe this boy had it. I wouldn't say that love can cure anything, but I will say that it is about as successful a cure as any I know about."

OH, THESE WOMEN!

By LEOLA ALLARD

A GIRL of 18 in New York sitting in the window of her room, her legs stretched out on the fire escape in the burning sun. This on one of the hottest days of the year. She is in the chorus I discover, and her co-workers seem to manage somehow to get to the seaside, and she doesn't want them to know that she can't go but must give the family her money. She is saving what she calls her pride.

A woman took her child to the Heckscher Foundation for Children in New York to have a tooth pulled. She found the dental clinic, and took the frightened, whimpering child inside. In the waiting room was a beautiful green parrot, and the moment he saw the child he yelled: "Hello, you!"

It delighted the little girl, who stopped crying. "Oh, doctor!" said the parrot, and laughed a long, loud, merry laugh.

And when the child got into the dentist's room she found a canary, singing its little heart out, in a noble effort to make her forget about the dentist.

The idea was Dr. Ralph Howard Bradsky's. The ladies vote him their thanks.

Fanny Ward, in giving the ladies of London the benefit of her beauty secrets, says: "Never eat more than you can hold in your two hands, at a time."

Which means the same as "eat all you can get your hands on."

Now that short skirts are fashionable and accepted even in Scotland, the women there have taken to wearing kilts, like the men.

The first thing they noticed was the amount of material it saved. Now all the women are wearing them.

You can get thoroughly addicted to New York, and you can sell yourself entirely on California. Two women writers, one living on each coast, got together recently at luncheon in New York.

"I hate New York," said the confirmed Californian. "It's such a crowded, sticky place, and I wept today at a letter telling me the acacias are in bloom at home, and all about the beautiful sunsets!"

"I hate the sunshine," said the New Yorker. "It reminds me of a women with a bright red satin dress, who put it on every morning!"

So Winifred went West and Edna stayed in the East and everybody was happy.
